NORTHERN FLOODS

COLLAPSE OF CHANGKUNG DYKE FEARED

TREMENDOUS LOSS OF LIFE

SUNSHINE COMES TOO LATE TO SAVE HANKOW

Hankow, Yesterday.

The watermark has reached the 51.4 mark, and a flood is anticipated every hour. There is anxiety over the Changkung dyke, where a number of sections are in a most critical condition. It is believed that they will be unable to withhold the pressure indefinitely. The cities of Ichang and Shasi are safe within their dykes.

A Nanking message states that tremendous loss of life and property resulted from breaks in the dykes between Shasi and Kingchow (Kiangling), flooding a very wide area of Central Hupeh, according to a telegram from General Hsu Yuan-chuen, the Border Defence Commissioner of Hupeh, Hunan and Szechuan. The waters are surrounding Kingchow to a depth of over 10 feet, and all the low-lying parts of Shasi are flooded to a depth of several feet. — Reuter.

LOKOW IN GRAVE DANGER

A message from Peiping states that on Friday the water level at Lokow, where the Tsinpu crosses the Yellow River, rose above last year's highest level, and is now only 12 inches below the top of the dyke.

The situation becomes more serious every day. The five breaks between Tsinan and the western border of Shantung are growing wider, defying all efforts to fill them. The flooded area includes the towns of Chuanchow, Yingchen, Chuyen, Hochih, Chiahshiang and Tungping. — Reuter.

JARDINE ESTATE VACATED

A Hankow message states that the water mark fell to 50.6 on Friday evening, but had this morning risen to 51.2. The houses in the Jardine estate have been vacated by most of the foreigners there.

General Chang Hsueh-liang informed Reuter that the water from the Han River was threatening to breach the Changkung dyke, and it was therefore being blown up in order to provide an exit to the Yangtze.

VILLAGE RAZED TO GROUND

Disastrous Windspout In Spain

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL Madrid, Yesterday.

The village of Fuentes de Valdepero, near Valencia, was completely destroyed by a windspout on Friday, all the buildings being razed to the ground with the exception of the church, a historic castle, and three stone edifices.

The 1,500 inhabitants were rendered homeless, one person having been killed and several severely injured, according to the first reports, which are feared to be incomplete, since all communications with the region have been interrupted. — Trans-Ocean Service.

Their Abyssinian majesties, Emperor Haile Selassie, and his Empress, Mannin Mikal Assafu, both of whom trace their ancestries back to the tribes ruled by the Queen of Sheba, of Biblical fame. The Emperor is head of the Christian Coptic Church, one of oldest branches of Christianity.

FATAL CAR ACCIDENT IN VIENNA

Frau Schuschnigg Killed

CHANCELLOR SHAKEN

Vienna, Yesterday.

The wife of the Austrian Chancellor, Herr von Schuschnigg, was killed in an accident near Lenz, as the Chancellor and his family were going on holiday to Upper Austria.

It is believed that the chauffeur fainted so that the car got out of control and dashed into a tree and was wrecked. All the occupants were thrown out and Frau von Schuschnigg was killed instantly and the chauffeur was critically injured.

The Chancellor's daughter escaped injury, but his 7-year-old son and also a police official in the car were slightly injured.

The Cabinet met immediately the news of the accident was received, and the Vice-Chancellor, Prince von Starheimberg, who was on holiday in Venice, engaged a special aeroplane to return to Vienna. Prince von Starheimberg will probably take the post of Chancellor until Herr Schuschnigg has fully recovered. — Reuter.

TYPHOON WARNING

A message from the Manila Observatory at 2.50 p.m. yesterday stated that a cyclone or typhoon was crossing Northern Luzon, moving west-north-west or north-west.

Army Reservists Receive Discharge In Germany

Berlin, yesterday. — For the first time since the proclamation of the new conscription laws, a contingent of soldiers of the "supplementary reserve" have been discharged from active service at the small garrison town of Blankenburg in the Harz mountains, where they had undergone a two months' military training course.

The whole town was agog and all the houses were gallantly decorated with bunting as the reservists, wearing traditional bunches of flowers in their caps, marched singing through the streets to the railway station to return to their homes, a scene which vividly called to mind similar scenes of pre-war days.

Before disbanding the contingent sent a telegram to Reichsfuehrer Hitler, expressing their gratitude for having been enabled to perform their duty as soldiers. — Trans-Ocean Service.

SHIPS QUEUE WITH MUNITION CARGO

AMAZING SCENES AT PORT SAID

100,000 TROOPS PASS THROUGH THE SUEZ CANAL

Asmara, Yesterday.

The Eritrean seaport of Massawa, a normally torpid Red Sea entrepot simmering in a temperature of 120 degrees, has suddenly been jerked into terrific activity. The wharves are mountains high with war cargo, and cranes ceaselessly swing towards the shore, carrying tanks, aeroplanes, guns, mules and horses. Four or five big steamers are always waiting for room at the wharfside to discharge their contents.

The glare of the inhospitable countryside, absolutely devoid of vegetation, makes the eyes burn. Water is painfully lacking, the troops being limited to two pints a day.

On the Asmara Plateau, 7,000 feet above the sea the conditions are more equable. Roads are hurriedly being driven there through ravines and mountains, taxing all the Italian engineers' skill, in order to relieve the pressure on the single-line railway of 120 miles, which is at present the only communication.

PARIS TAKES ELABORATE PRECAUTIONS

Foreigners Warned To Avoid Demonstrations

FETE NATIONALE BRINGS ANXIOUS PERIOD

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL Paris, Yesterday.

All private planes have been forbidden to fly over Paris tomorrow, when the observance of the national holiday will be marked by mass demonstrations of pronounced political character.

The ban on aeroplanes has been decreed by the police in order to prevent the dropping from planes of inflammatory leaflets.

Although the authorities have taken all possible precautionary measures to forestall any clashes tomorrow between the two major political groups—the National Front of nationalist elements and the Popular Front, supported by the Left-wing parties—the police have seen fit to warn all foreigners living in Paris to stay away from the demonstrations. Any foreigner found taking part in the demonstrations will be immediately expelled from France.

Signor Mussolini's sending the largest army ever landed in Africa. Over 100,000 men have passed through the Suez Canal since March 27, and more transports are due in August. The Port Said authorities are wrestling with unprecedented congestion, there being continuous arrivals of packed troopships. Already sunstroke has taken a heavy toll, due to the men stripping to the waist.

Palestine, Cyprus and Syria are combed by mules and donkeys. The Port Sudan warehouses are clogged with cargo. The Yemenese populace are pouring to Massawa, attracted by the unheard-of labour wages.

Khartum is rumbling under a current of resentment among the tribes of the Sudan at the menace to the sole remaining independent State of Africa.

The London papers are publishing pictures of masses of munitions being unloaded at Addis Ababa. — Reuter.

JUBILEE REVIEW AT ALDERSHOT

Thousands Witness Stirring Spectacle

THEIR MAJESTIES WITH THEIR FOUR SONS

Aldershot, Yesterday.

At Rushmore arena, where His Majesty the King held his Jubilee Review of 8,000 troops of the Aldershot Command, representing every branch of the army, their Majesties were accompanied by their four sons. Thousands of people filled the tiers of seats stretched in a great semicircle around the arena.

The King was received by a royal salute of guns, the massed bands playing the national anthem. He took the salute from a dais in front of the royal pavilion, around which were grouped members of the Colonial and Dominion Offices, with the King's four Indian orderlies.

The King, wearing the khaki service uniform of a Field-Marshal, stood motionless on the dais except when raising his hand in salute, while miles of troops swept past him and the crowd was cheering the magnificent spectacle. — Reuter.

The South Africans, who won the Lord's Test after forcing a draw at Trent Bridge, commenced well at Leeds yesterday.

DREYFUS PASSES AT 76

MAN WHO SPENT FIVE YEARS ON DEVIL'S ISLAND

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL Paris, Yesterday.

Lt.-Colonel Alfred Dreyfus, the hero of the famous "Dreyfus Affair," which was the most sensational political trial in the history of the Third Republic, died at his Paris home yesterday after a prolonged illness, aged 76.

Dreyfus, it will be remembered, was sentenced to deportation for life in 1894 for betraying military secrets and was kept in prison at Devil's Island for five years until a campaign begun in 1897 in which the famous French writer Emil Zola, in the pamphlet "J'Accuse," took the leading part, resulted in a revision of the sentence.

A Rennes Court-Martial, however, found Dreyfus guilty once more, sentencing him to 10 years' imprisonment in a fortress, and Dreyfus was only acquitted and reinstated in the army when the trial was reopened in 1903, following M. Jaures' intervention.

Dreyfus re-entered the army during the world war and was promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel in 1918, and shortly afterwards was made an Officer of the Legion of Honour. Since that time he had lived in retirement. — Trans-Ocean Service.

JUDGMENT AGAINST MR. RAIDER

Alleged Mistreatment For Cancer

Tientsin, Yesterday.

The United States Court has given judgment against Mr. Raider in the case against the Peiping Union Medical College. Mr. Raider will pay the costs. — Reuter.

Mr. H. A. Raider's case, was that his wife did not receive proper medical treatment for cancer at the Peiping Union Medical College, while evidence was adduced that in fact hers was a hopeless case, and that everything possible was done. Mr. Raider also raised the point that his wife was not allowed to be treated by a particular doctor she wanted, but was looked after by an unqualified man.

The case caused a great deal of interest in social circles in Peiping, where both Mr. and Mrs. Raider were well known.

WEATHER REPORT

A moderate anticyclone covers the Pacific to the east of Japan, and a ridge of moderately high pressure extends south-westward from it to the Eastern Sea. A depression is centred to the west of Chefoo, moving north-east. At 2 p.m. the typhoon or depression was centred about 150 miles north-north-east of Manila, moving north-west or west-north-west across North Luzon. East winds, moderate; fair, was the forecast for to-day as issued by the Royal Observatory last evening.

ENGLAND ALL OUT

DISMISSED FOR 216 AT HEADINGLEY

WYATT AND AMES AMONG "DUCKS"

MITCHELL AND HAMMOND DEFY VINCENT

London, Yesterday.

Following the dismissal of R. E. S. Wyatt, their skipper, for a "duck," the England eleven collapsed for 216 runs at Headingley to-day in the third Test match against the South Africans, who wound up the first day's play 190 runs in arrears, with nine wickets in hand.

Only Hammond (63) and Mitchell (58) offered any resistance to C. L. Vincent, a slow medium left-hander, who took 4 for 45 in 32 overs.

The weather was gloriously fine and the wicket was very fast after three weeks of no rain. A crowd of 7,000 was present very early in the morning.

The England selectors, who have been exceptionally handicapped in the present series of Tests by mishaps—Stutcliffe, Clark, and Hollies are unable to play in the present match—received a further setback early this morning when Leyland reported that he was suffering from lumbago.

MITCHELL CALLED IN

Not feeling justified in playing either J. C. Clay, the Glamorgan bowler, or James Langridge, the Sussex all-rounder, for their batting alone, the selectors called on A. Mitchell, the Yorkshire batsman, who would be playing on an entirely familiar ground.

The South Africans surprisingly brought in C. L. Vincent, who failed at Trent Bridge, in favour of X. Balaskas, the goosy bowler who took 9 for 103 at Lord's, while David Nourse was excluded to enable K. F. Viljoen, the only South African to score a century in the last Test series in Australia, another chance. He scored only 18 at Trent Bridge.

WYATT OUT FOR "DUCK"

The winning of the toss by Wyatt was considered a tremendous advantage, but the crowd, which had been swelled to 16,000 before play actually commenced, were given an early shock. In Crisp's second over Wyatt, after being in difficulties with his first two balls, nicked the third, an out-swinging, into Cameron's safe hands behind the wicket, 0-1-0.

Apparently No Damage Was Done

Los Angeles, Yesterday.

A sharp earthquake, lasting several seconds, was felt here and at Hollywood, Pasadena, Long Beach and elsewhere this morning. Furniture was shaken, but apparently no damage was done. — Reuter.

FLAMES 300-FT. HIGH

DISTILLERY STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL Paris, Yesterday.

Some 400,000 gallons of spirit were transformed into a vast raging sea of flames shooting to a height of more than 300 feet when lightning struck a distillery near the little town of Gisors in Northern France.

In order to prevent an explosion the fire brigade diverted the stream of burning spirits to a neighbouring river, whose locks were closed. — Trans-Ocean Service.

Paulson's Affairs

By HASSE ZETTERSTROM

PAULSON walks in such a queer way," remarked my wife. "Have you noticed it?" I had noticed it, I had even studied it. It is like that with things which are out of the ordinary; we can't resist paying attention to them. If you sit opposite a hare-lipped or squint-eyed man in the tram, your eyes are drawn in that direction. It is the same with Paulson's leg, for it is only one of them which is imperfect, the left one. When he sits or stands nothing can be noticed, but when he walks—he takes a step forward, and the leg bends in such a way that one expects him to fall, but he does not. He immediately straightens himself, bringing his whole body into the usual upright position. "Has he never done anything about it?" asks my wife. She wants everyone to be perfect, without the least flaw or blemish. "I have never asked him about it."

Now, who was Paulson? A young man who served us in many ways. He went messages, did the marketing, and got rid of unwelcome visitors. A pleasant young man, who came to us by some chance circumstance which I do not remember, and whom we all trusted.

But, he walked so strangely. One day I said to him: "Paulson, you should do something for your leg. Consult a specialist, perhaps the matter is relatively simple and can easily be cured." Paulson smiled.

"I've been to lots of doctors and hospitals about that leg. They can't do anything. I fell off a roof when I was little, that's how I got it. The doctors are very interested in my leg, but they can't fix it up. Anyway it's too late now—the business is settled, and I've got my money."

"The business? How so?" "I've sold my leg to Professor H. at the Orthopaedic Institute. And not just that leg, but the whole lot, my whole skeleton. I got five hundred for it. But of course the Professor doesn't take possession till I quit, so to speak. There has been so much fuss about it all that I'm getting fed up. I might as well leave it as it is now."

"How did you come to make the arrangement with Professor H.?"

"He was treating me, and when he had been at it a while, he said, just like all the others. 'Nothing can be done, but look here, Paulson, I'll buy your leg for the Institute. Your case is altogether too interesting to risk its being lost to Science. Would you take three hundred down?' 'If I do make the bargain, it will have to be cash down,' I told him. 'Business like this gets fixed up when one is there oneself to do it, so to speak. I'd like to think it over.' So I had a chat with the Old Man at home. He's real practical, and said maybe I could get more. And I did. Professor H. offered five hundred, and then I agreed. We put it down in black and white, and so it was fixed up."

"A strange affair. I've never heard anything like it." "Oh, there's others besides me who sell their skeletons. Do you happen to know Flenhuset, sir?" "No, I don't think so."

"That old chap that is going about with a head that's growing, not upways, but at the sides. My Old Man knows him. They used to be on the same job before his head began to grow, and he sometimes drops in to us for a chat. One evening he told us that he had sold his skeleton for a thousand. It seems the doctors thought it was very interesting for science too. When he had gone the Old Man got mad, and swore at me for only getting five hundred. He thought my leg was worth just as much as that head, and he's right."

"Then I got thinking about buying a motor bike. I had had a try on one that a chap I know had, and wanted one like it. I had a little money saved, but needed two hundred more. Then I had a chat with the Old Man and he said, 'Why don't you try and get a loan from the Professor? He seems a decent sort.'"

HINTS FOR MODERN HOMES

Preparations For
Rubber Floors
CLEANING METHOD.

IF new rubber flooring is to be laid, the sub-floor must be perfectly clean, and, most important, perfectly dry. The surface must be free from irregularities; and it is worth while, if the floor is an old wooden one, to have any uneven surface levelled with new boards. Plywood is excellent for this.

No rubber floor should be washed for at least seven days after laying. When washing is necessary, use as little water as possible, and avoid washing soda. "Mopping" is not usually enough to wash a rubber floor. Use a brush with hard bristles and hot-tish water.

Never attempt to clean rubber flooring with turpentine: this will make the surface tacky. Do not apply polish until the "bloom" has gone from new rubber. Wash the polish off every few months and apply a fresh coat.

Treating A Sallow Complexion

THE RIGHT METHOD

LOTION MUST BE USED
SPARINGLY

IF your skin is inclined to sallowness, you must do all you can to counteract this tendency. The wrong method is to use a very light pinky-white powder over a white foundation or no foundation at all.

The right method is to have a powder lotion for your powder base (most sallowness skins are inclined to oiliness, and a fine liquid powder is best for this type of skin), and to choose one in a fairly deep, yet clear, tone.

The warmer shades of rachel, ochre rose, and a light sun-tan are suggestions. Use the lotion sparingly and apply with the finger-tips. See that the skin is quite dry before powdering.

BEACH AND SUN SUITS

Shorts With Backless
Brassiere Tops

LINEN figures again in beach and sun suits.

The latest beach suit model has rather wide calf-length trousers, worn with a shirt of a different colour and an enormous Mexican hat, also of linen.

Alternatively, printed cotton or linen "shorts" suits for sun bathing have neatly cut shorts with backless brassiere tops cut to the waist in front.

AN ATTRACTIVE CENTRE PIECE

A THICK oblong slab of crystal makes an attractive centre-piece for a summer dinner table. It is grooved to hold fruit and flexible mirror glass mats are used.

A FLORAL VOGUE

ROSE-pink and white-camellias interpret the flower vogue on a hat of black Bakia straw. They nestle against the hair, emphasising the line of the upturned brim.

LAWRENCE SHOWS FINE PROMISE

FAST SPRINT AGAINST NO OPPOSITION

CHINESE B. C. WIN RELAY

PROMISE of great things from W. Lawrence, the Colony Swimming champion, was indicated at the Victoria Recreation Club's final night gala last night when he covered the 50 Yards Free Style Invitation event in 25 4-5 secs. against practically no opposition. What he will do when fully extended in this sprint is eagerly awaited.

The Chinese Bathing Club carried off the 200 Yards Invitation Relay race, beating the Chinese Y.M.C.A. by two yards, while a yard separated the latter from the Young Companions' Association, who were third.

Among the distinguished guests present were His Excellency, the Officer Administering the Government and Lady Southern, the Senior Naval Officer, Commodore C. G. Sedgwick, and Mrs. Sedgwick, and Lieut. Craig.

F.A. MEETING TO-MORROW

Revision Of Rules On Agenda

EARLIER START TO SEASON SEEN AS NECESSITY

The Annual General Meeting of the Hong Kong Football Association will be held to-morrow in the Board Room of Messrs. Jardine Matheson & Co. Ltd. at 5.30 p.m.

Among the items on the agenda is the adoption of the revised rules of the Association and competitions. The sub-committee appointed to revise the rules have put in a lot of time and hard work and must be congratulated on the efficient manner they have drawn up the new rules.

The Association rules were carefully revised last year and seemed to serve their purpose well. There do not appear to be many great changes in these rules. It is in the League and other competition rules that many flaws have been found.

The Association will have to start the football season earlier this year if they wish to avoid extending the season to the middle of May.

It is known that postponements will have to be granted to the Chinese teams during the National Games in Shanghai in October, and this will cause disarrangement in the fixtures unless provision is made when they are drawn up.

SWIMMING GALA TO-NIGHT

Three Open Events At Chinese B.C.

The Chinese Bathing Club are holding their third swimming gala of the season to-night at North Point.

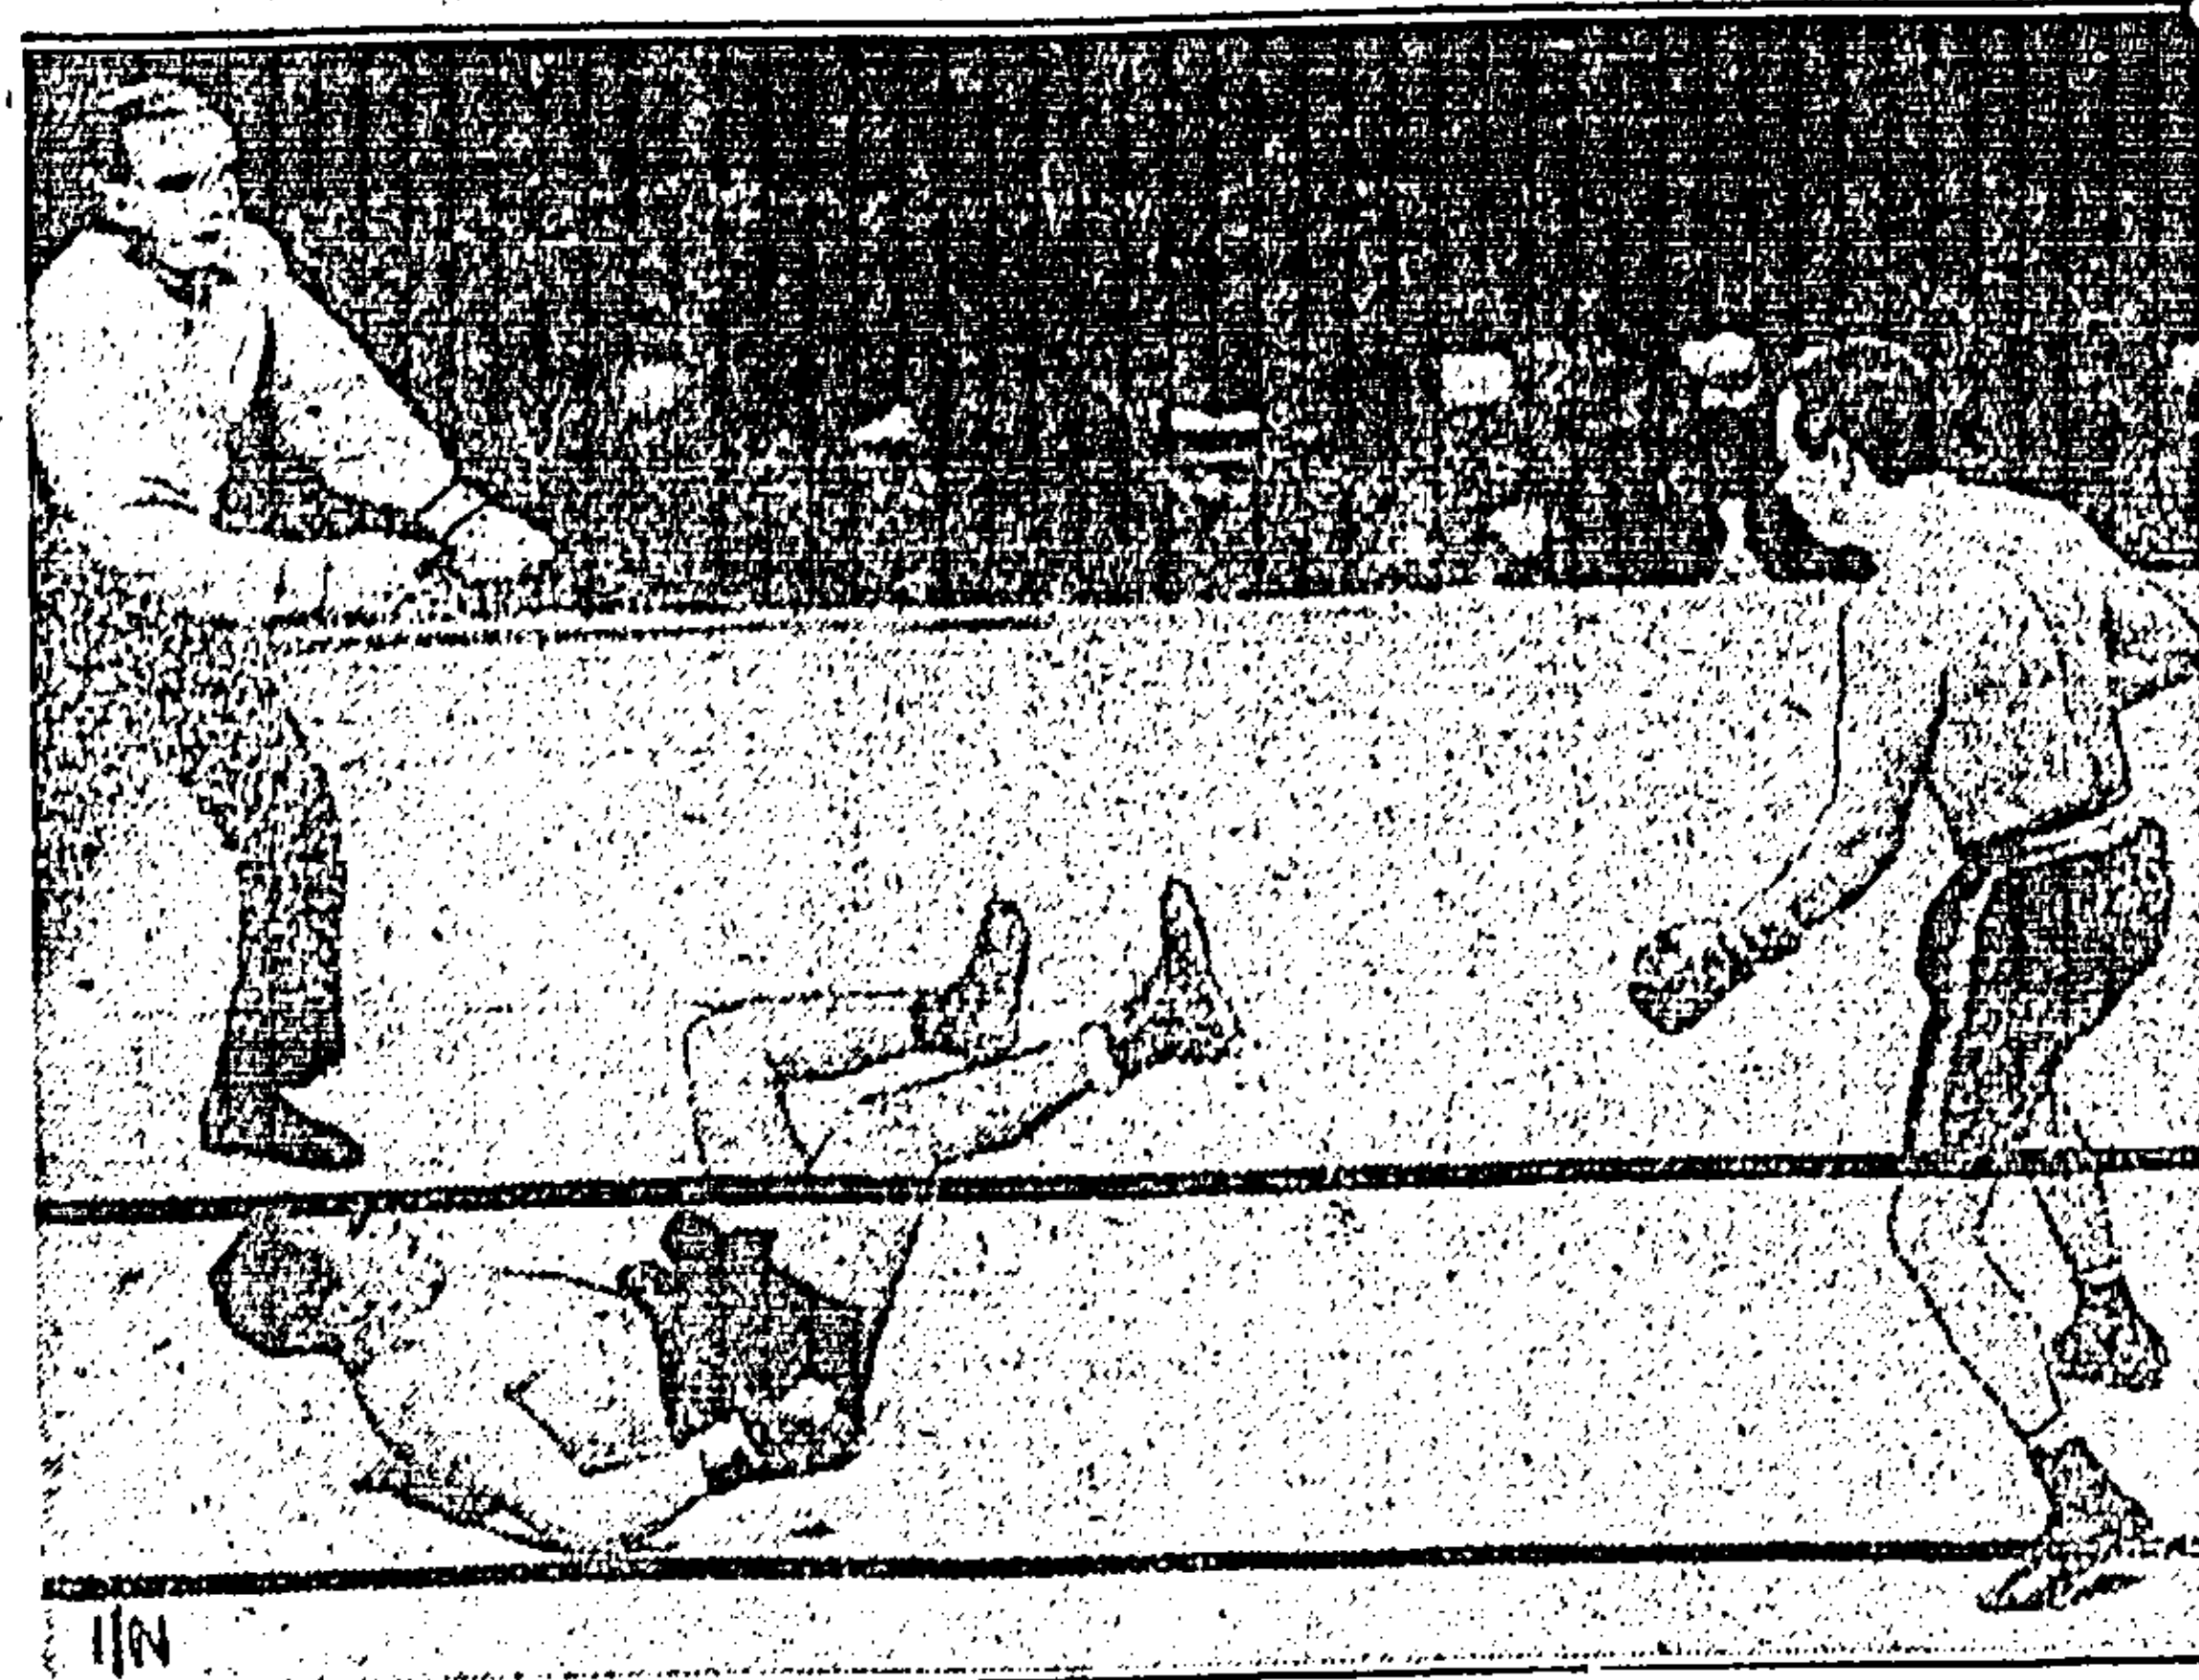

A long and interesting programme of events has been arranged and includes three open events which should draw the leading swimmers in the Colony.

The following is the programme:

- 500 Metres Free Style Men's Relay (Open)
- 200 Metres Free Style Ladies' Relay (Open)
- 100 Metres Free Style (Boys and girls) handicap
- 100 Metres Free Style (Ladies)
- 200 Metres Breast Stroke (Men)
- Ladies' Nomination Race
- 200 Metres Free Style (Men-Prize winners barred)
- 25 Metres Butterfly Stroke (Ladies)
- 400 Metres Free Style (Open)
- Obstacle Race.

RELUCTANT COMPETITORS

The Billiards and Ping Pong Tournament arranged by the Cheero Club have been postponed for an indefinite period. A reasonable number of entries were secured, but, although the competitors had paid their entry fees, they showed great reluctance in playing off their ties.

Kwok's Record Shattered

KWOK Chung-hang is in grave danger of losing the title of being China's finest breast-stroke swimmer. His national record for the 200 metres has just been broken by Singapore Chinese, Lui Kiat-sang, who covered the distance in 3 mins. 4 9-10 secs. in the recent Singapore Chinese Swimming Club's championship gala. Kwok's former record stood at 3 mins. 5 1-5 secs.

Another record went by the board in the same Singapore gala when Yeung Yui-ho broke Chai Po-chong's national record for the 400 metres free style by 7 1/2 seconds, when he covered the distance in 5 mins. 44 2-5 seconds.

W. Lawrence, L. Roza-Pereira, A. da Roza and Dr. Lang are among those who can be seen practising daily in the V.R.C. pool. Although these four are almost certain to be in the Colony team, there are several Chinese swimmers who should be included. A look round the Chinese Bathing Club last week-end revealed plenty of excellent talent which could be utilised to advantage. Among the possibilities is S. H. Wong, the Chinese Bathing Club diver who has made phenomenal progress since last seen in competitive events. He will surely challenge Ed. da Roza, the Colony champion, in the Trials.

The Shanghai Interport swimmers will have a slight advantage in that they swim in fresh water, and it would be an excellent gesture on the part of the European Y.M.C.A. if the Colony's selected swimmers were allowed to practice a month in advance in the "Y" fresh water bath so as to give them an even chance against the invaders. Last year's crack team came second to Tientsin in the Triangular Interport only because they had not practised sufficiently in fresh water.

Following the very successful "Y" Triangular swimming gala against the East Lancs and the Lincolns, there is a move afoot to hold one every month, bringing in the Fuellers and probably one or two of the Chinese Clubs.

Radio's Tennis Capture THE Radio's chances of at least securing the runners-up position in the "D" Division of the Lawn Tennis League have been increased by the fact that David Leonard, brother of the well-known Craigengower player, will assist them in their remaining matches. He is better

MISS HANCOCK MAY PLAY TO-MORROW

The feature of the coming week's tennis will be the return encounter between the United Services Recreation Club, holders of the Dunlop Mixed Doubles League shield, and the Kowloon Cricket Club "A" team, which takes place to-morrow afternoon on the former's courts at King's Park.

The U.S.R.C. will probably have the services of Miss R. Hancock, who put her knee out a fortnight ago while in practice but who has now recovered.

SILVA FAILS TO SAVE THE RECREIO

CIVIL SERVICE RECORD SURPRISE WIN

BOWLING GREEN JUNIORS LOSE 100 PER CENT.

ALTHOUGH C. G. Silva surpassed himself in a magnificent effort to save his team, the Club de Recreio suffered their second successive lawn bowls league setback yesterday when they were beaten by the Kowloon Bowling Green by 6 shots. They were avenged in the junior division, however, as their colleagues routed the hitherto undefeated leaders.

The Civil Service staged a remarkable comeback to beat Craigengower "B" and record their first win of the season. This was the only Club to register the "double." Despite their depleted ranks and the absence of A. R. Dallah, the Indian R.C. confounded the critics by securing a 2-shot win over the Police.

Craigengower "A" took another step toward retaining their league championship honours at the expense of the unfortunate Kowloon C.C., beating them by 39 shots and nearly eclipsing their former record. Sixes were registered by rinks skipped by W. K. Way, H. Westlake, and E. el Arcull.

CZECHS HOLD
GERMANS IN
DAVIS CUP TIEMenzel Beats Henkel
In Dour BattleVON CRAMM MASTERS CASKA
IN STRAIGHT SETS

Prague, Yesterday. Honours were even at the end of the first day's play in the European Zone Final of the Davis Cup contest between Germany and Czechoslovakia, the outstanding feature of which was the terrific five-set duel between Roderick Menzel, the Czech champion, and Henkel, the young German who defeated Jack Crawford in the semi-final round.

In the other encounter Gottfried von Cramm, finalist at Wimbledon, easily disposed of Caska, the second ranking Czech player, in straight sets.

Menzel came very near to defeat at the hands of his youthful opponent. His terrific service and brilliant volleying, however, dominated play during the first two sets, but he then tired very badly, only to recover when all seemed lost.

EXCITING STRUGGLE

In the first set Menzel captured his opponent's service game from love 40 to obtain a 3-2 lead. Henkel, however, won a love game to lead 4-3 and again led at 5-4, but Menzel broke through the former's service at 6-5 for the set.

In the second set Menzel was full of fire, and Henkel was only able to win one game.

The third set commenced disastrously for the Czech, who was very slow, and the German exerted all his strength to break through for a 5-4 lead from which he won the set.

PHYSICAL SUPERIORITY

Henkel won the fourth set on sheer physical superiority. The last set was tense with excitement when Menzel led 4-1, only for Henkel to stage a remarkable rally to draw level at 4-4. Then Menzel, with a last tremendous effort, won Henkel's service to take the set and match at 6-4.

Von Cramm played a very stylish game against Caska, his stroke production being perfect. He was relentless with a good length, scoring winners on the backhand, to which Caska could find no counter.

On yesterday's form, Von Cramm should beat Menzel when they clash to-morrow.

VON CRAMM'S EASY WIN

Caska, the youthful Czech, won only the third and fifth games in the first set. He led 2-1 in the second, but once the German fell into his stride he was the master of the situation. Von Cramm led 8-0 in the third set before Caska won a game.

If Von Cramm beats Menzel to-morrow, following the expected German doubles win, Germany will meet America in the Inter-Zone Final next Saturday.

Scores were:—
Roderick Menzel (Czechoslovakia) beat Heinrich Henkel (Germany) 7-5, 6-1, 4-0, 2-0, 6-4.
Gottfried Von Cramm (Germany) beat Josef Caska (Czechoslovakia) 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.

—Reuter.

THREE-HOUR STRUGGLE

A Trans-Ocean message states that the encounter between Menzel and Henkel lasted fully three hours under sweltering conditions, while von Cramm disposed of Caska in an hour.

ISLAND OF HIDDEN WEALTH

Cocos, Where Three Hoards Are Buried Fabulous Treasure Of Bygone Pirates

(By PHILIP PAGE)

THE first view of Cocos reveals something vastly different from the pretty-tropical island of convention.

This little island, with its few attendant rocks, is a precipitous mountain top, far out in the Pacific off the coast of South America. Dense vegetation covers it, relieved by what appear from some distance to be long irregular silver ribbons, and which are in fact cascades of fresh water.

I was fortunate in persuading the officer of the watch of the small ship which had brought me to this strange paradise in the grey, or rather, pink dawn to let me land quite alone; it was several hours before I was joined by a few fellow passengers. The process is uncomfortable and can be hazardous, for sharks abound and come within a short distance of the shore. However, the narrow beach of Wafer Bay was reached with nothing worse than a wetting, the result of wading waist-deep in the surf for fifty yards or more.

Beauty And Ugliness

The loveliness of the landscape as the sun rose to reveal it in all its glory was intoxicating. The lofty palm trees tower over bushes and smaller trees which are a fantasy of gorgeous colour. Flowers, red, yellow, mauve, overload them. The ground beyond the strip of sand was carpeted with what I judged to be a species of convolvulus, of vivid blue. Into the sea there trickled a rivulet alive with fish as gay and as multi-coloured as the flowers. Crabs, scarlet and black, scampered over the rocks.

Unfortunately, Wafer Bay has not been left entirely to nature; if man was absent, man's handiwork was not. Jack London used to say that there was enough corrugated iron in the Pacific to cover the whole of Ireland. If Cocos Island can be said to boast a "town," or the remains of one, here it is. About half a dozen deserted huts, corrugated-iron-roofed, have been dumped among the palm trees.

It would have been more poetic to describe them as "nestling." But only thatched cottages nestle. Huts, particularly in the South Seas, should aggressively against the surrounding beauty, and these were an eyesore in all the hideousness of their decay. They are, of course, the one-time dwellings of previous treasure-seekers, among the last of whom was the

Treasure-Seekers

I wandered in and out of them finding an amazing quantity of junk—rusty tools, tattered magazines, photographs of film stars pinned to the damp walls, writing materials, empty bottles, a mildewed copy of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." There were, besides, sacks of coral and cement, drums of foil, boxes of nails, and, strange discovery, six full bottles of embrocation for bruises. Inscriptions in Spanish and German were daubed in white paint, and one in English: "To the next gang. Hoping you will have better luck than we did. Dig, you—dig!"

Everywhere silence and desolation—and those tottering monuments to man.

At ten o'clock in the morning the heat was fierce and the insects fiercer. I strove to cope with the former by sampling the river water by means of a jam-jar, but it tasted brackish. Milk from a coconut, opened with difficulty and a rusty hammer, was more refreshing. To walk into the cliff-like interior, thickly overgrown, became torture after twenty minutes; thorny bushes tore one's clothes to shreds, and the jagged volcanic rock soon ruined a pair of light shoes. Everywhere the ground was pitted with excavation.

Pirates' Hoards

What is this treasure of Cocos which caused murder most foul in the long ago, and in more recent times has launched and continues to launch, expeditions by the score?

Sir Malcolm Campbell, who visited Cocos in 1926 in the yacht "Adventures," estimates the value of the treasure at $12,000,000. "He did not succeed in finding any of it, but he is still convinced that it is there."

That there are (or, to be more cautious, have been deposited) on Cocos three distinct treasures is a matter of undisputed fact. Captain Edward Davis, a partner of the by no means impeccable Dampier, hid here the booty that was his after he sacked the city of Leon in Nicaragua in 1685. In the early nineteenth century a ruffian with the picturesque sobriquet of "Bonito of the Bloody Sword" also used Cocos to store the proceeds of his robberies.

A Scoundrel
But the most considerable treasure reached the island little more than a hundred years ago. This is the treasure of Captain Thompson, honest skipper turned pirate, who perpetrated a horrible crime in 1821.

The principal inhabitants of Lima, the capital of Peru, fabulously wealthy, were then awaiting in terror the onslaught of Bolivar, the "Liberator." They resolved to put themselves, the bullion which was in Lima's banks, private possessions of all kinds, and, most valuable of all, the jewels, vestments, and images of her churches, including a life-sized statue of the Virgin in solid gold, aboard Captain Thompson's ship, under the protection of the British flag.

Piracy, however, was not quite dead in those days, and Captain Thompson found temptation too strong. He butchered all his passengers, seized the glittering cargo, sailed for Cocos Island, and buried this fantastic wealth "in a natural cave," where, the optimists assert—and who is to gainsay them with any authority?—it remains.

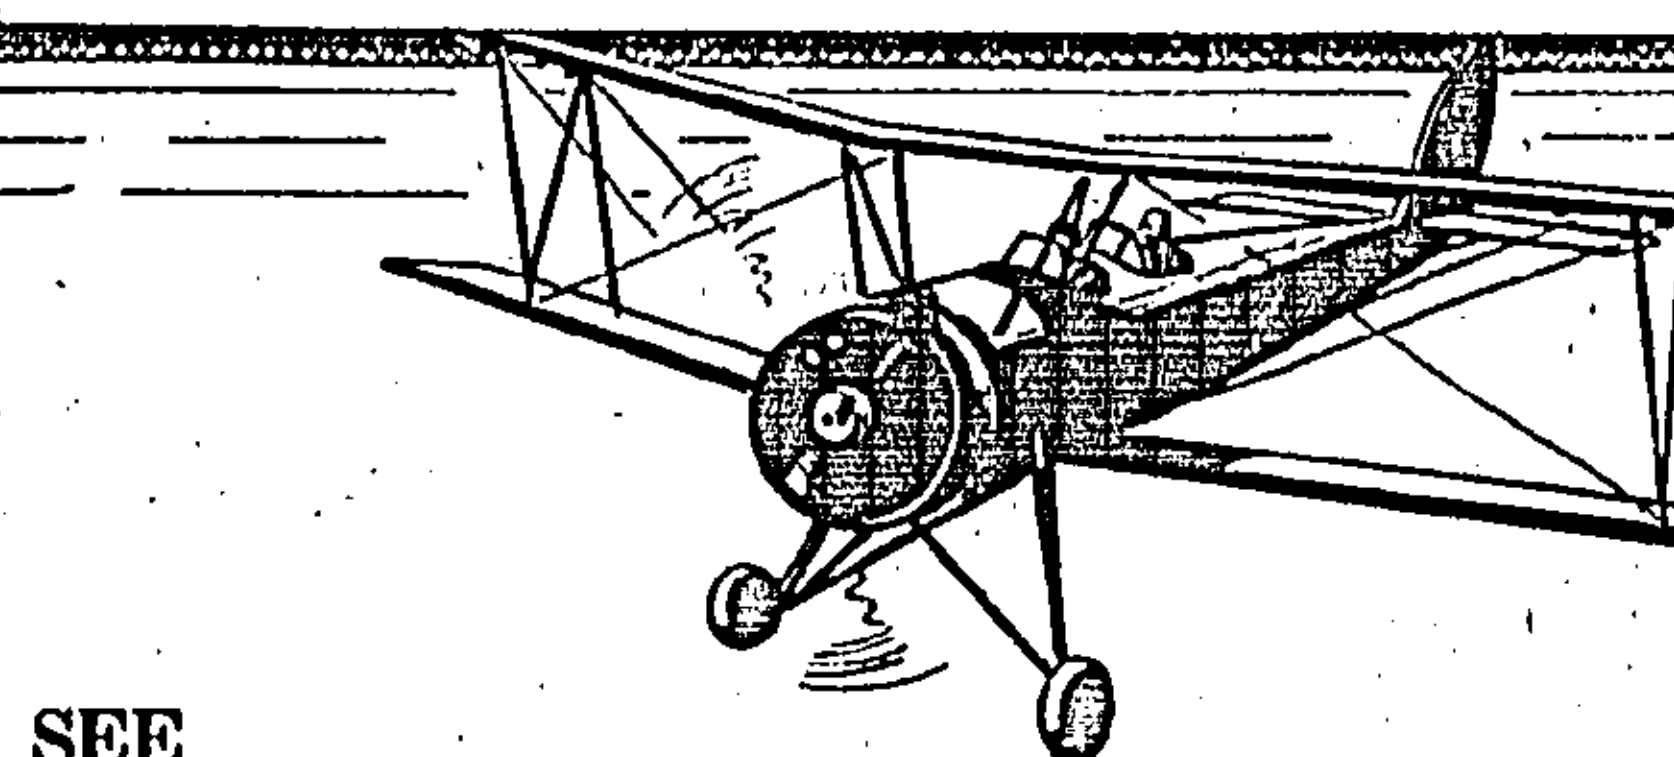

Thompson was captured, but escaped and made his way to Newfoundland. In 1844 he met there a man named Keating, whom he persuaded to go to Cocos with a companion to fetch the treasure, giving him the clue. Keating seems to have been as big a scoundrel as Thompson, for he was strongly suspected of having murdered his companion. He secured none of the treasure, and on his deathbed, penniless, in 1867, gave the clue to a certain Nicholas Fitzgerald, who befriended him.

Fitzgerald gave it in 1894 to the late Commodore Curzon Howe, who had saved him from drowning.

Where Is The Treasure?
Vast treasure may be on Cocos Island. I think there is. Yet the most plausible of clues may prove fallacious. And to riddle the island, small as it is, in haphazard fashion, would be a task involving labour on a gigantic scale, a costly engineering plant, and immense expense. Moreover, to any such process Costa Rica, to whom Cocos Island belongs, might not unreasonably object. She did object, it will be remembered, to a recent expedition. And should any treasure be forthcoming, Costa Rica will claim a large part, if not all of it.

An expedition on a grand scale is hardly a commercial proposition. And while small expedition after small expedition goes out, Cocos Island will sleep on in its ineffable loveliness and loneliness, a long-remembered joy to its rare visitors. Its doublets, its pieces of eight, its jewels and its golden images, are as little likely to be disturbed as the bones of Captain Davis, of Captain Thompson, and of "Bonito of the Bloody Sword."

WISE & OTHERWISE

"China adopts strangulation machine" says headline. This is nothing new, England has had one for years, only there they call it Income Tax!

NEW VERSION
"Penny wise—pouch foolish."

We read, in the news items of last week, that a mad bullock was shot in the neighbourhood of May Road, after "having previously visited the Peak." It is thought that the animal may have come from Kowloon and was maddened by the coolness of its reception on the heights.

SUGGESTION

Another good idea would be to have "Post No Bills" signs on all pillar-boxes.

Story With A Moral

And then there was the girl who became an old maid, because she never stopped talking long enough for any man to kiss her.

MATTER OF FORM

A theatrical producer selected a chorus of 30 for a new musical comedy in 30 minutes. He is, of course, quick at figures.

Taking No Chances

The confidence trickster who owned an expensive car just to keep up appearances.

STRAWBERRY TEA
Vicar: "Now, isn't this better than stealing the fruit?"

Chorus: "Yes, sir."
"Now, why is it better?"
"If we steal them we don't get sugar and cream."

Was that bull on May Road trying to get into the "May Rodents' Society"?

SKIN DEEP

A psychologist says that a pretty face does not always denote a good temper. A thing of beauty can annoy for ever.

Answer To Correspondent
No, Albert, the expression "light fiction" does not usually refer to your electricity bill.

Points Of View
He looked on her as his past. She looked on him as her future.

Staying Power
"Don't stay too long on a first call," says a book on etiquette. That's right, but your hostess at her ease by being easy-going.

Reflection
Looking around Europe it seems that no nation wants to start a war. All they want is for the other fellow to.

Cannibalism

A FEW days ago I received a gift of a live Bamboo Snake which brought my collection up to a total of five. Two or three of these have been in my possession for nearly two years. To celebrate the arrival of the new guest, a feast was arranged of five mice, to each snake a mouse. One of the snakes is a large one and considerably bigger than three of the others.

Next morning this large snake was absolutely bloated. So swollen was he, or she, that the skin had stretched so much that the scales were pulled apart and separated instead of overlapping one another.

I suspected that the snake had had more than its fair share of the feast, and inspection showed that one of the snakes, the new arrival, was missing! Could this mean that the bloated appearance of the large snake was in part due to an act of cannibalism, an unfriendly gesture, to put it mildly, to the new guest?

Unusual

Now Trimeresurus albolabris is not, to the best of my knowledge, prone to cannibalism. A cobra will eat anything—frogs, birds, mice and other snakes; one cobra that I kept for two years ate within a week two pythons nearly as long as itself. The King-cobra or Hamadryad is a snake-eater. One that I received dead had a Bamboo snake in its stomach.

In the present case I suspected that the large snake and the small snake had both bitten a mouse, and that the large snake had von, and after swallowing the mouse had swallowed in turn the small snake attached at the other end.

Such had indeed been the case, for that night the large snake was very sick and next morning in a row were three very dead mice, the head of the third mouse being inside the jaws of the small and also very dead Bamboo Snake.

Scarlet Pods

In between the rain storms it is possible to go for short walks and, though the heavy rain has destroyed many flowers, a few fruits and flowers may yet be seen. The most conspicuous object is the fruit of Sterculia lanceolata. Typically the pods are arranged radially in groups of five; from green they change gradually through yellow and orange-vermillion to scarlet, when they split, disclosing a few jet black seeds—a striking colour contrast.

The seeds are black because they are coated with a thin layer of pulp, black in colour. This pulp is eaten by birds and the seeds scattered, as the birds often carry them away and eat the pulp in a distant spot and there discard the seed.

The Blue Magpie—that long-tailed bird with a bright red bill—mistakenly named by some people a Blue Jay—is very fond of these seeds and it is rather a fine sight to see this, one of our most handsome resident birds, in association with these scarlet fruits.

The commonest of the local species of Clematis is now in full flower. It is Clematis Meyeniana. The family Ranunculaceae, to which the buttercups of England belong, is poorly represented in the tropics. In Hong Kong there are only five species of Clematis and one of Thalictrum, the latter found only on high mountains, e.g., Lantau peak. There is only one local Clematis now in flower, so confusion is impossible; the white flowers are borne in great profusion and are fragrant.

Melastoma

One genus of flowering shrub likes hot, wet weather. It is Melastoma, a word meaning "black mouth," because the edible fruits of the species (e.g. M. repens) when eaten stain the mouth. M. sanguineum has large purplish-pink flowers with, typically, seven petals; the leaf is lanceolate with a few stiff red hairs. M. candidum has a slightly smaller flower, typically with five petals; the leaf is softer and instead of stiff red hairs the two surfaces are covered with fine pale yellow or white hairs. M. repens is a creeping species with much smaller flowers of the same colour, and with five petals.

It's EASY to Catch COLD or 'FLU' when TRAVELLING

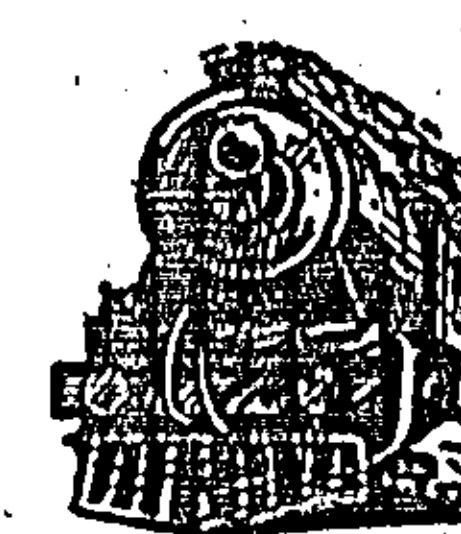

'ASPRO' WILL PROTECT YOU

GERMS are no respecters of persons. Wherever you travel you cannot tell the moment you are likely to catch a cold—or even the 'Flu'. The proved protection is 'ASPRO'. At the slightest sign of sneezing—sore throat—feverishness, etc., take 'ASPRO' according to the directions in the packet. Quick relief is assured, because 'ASPRO' expels the body poisons through the pores of the skin, and, therefore, restores one to normal health by eliminating such poisons and not suppressing them. Furthermore, 'ASPRO' is safe, sure and certain—it neither harms the heart nor stomach, and conforms to the standard of purity laid down by the British Pharmacopoeia—the guiding authority of the medical profession.

Hong Kong will soon awake to the fact that if they want to go ahead in life they must be prepared for it, and if they do not take advantage of the many opportunities offered to them now they may have many a chance to repent later in life.

"I am particularly interested in evening commercial schools and I admire those who work in the day and study at night. They study to better themselves for better service to the community. They show firmness of mind and perfect self-control. I believe that you admire these men and women just as much as I do. I understand that Mr. Kwok is going to enlarge his school with more comprehensive courses of study preparing students for varied phases of business activity in anticipation of the return of better times."

Hong Kong Personalities

In 1916 Mr. Larssen came to Hong Kong and superintended the building of the steamers Prosper and Prominent for Messrs. Hans Kiaer and Co. by the Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock Company. Going on leave to Norway in 1918, he returned to Hong Kong and founded the firm of Karsten Larssen and Co. (Hong Kong) Ltd. in 1919. He was appointed Consul for Denmark in 1920 and Consul for Norway in 1929.

Mr. Larssen's first visit to Hong Kong was paid in 1902, as Second Officer of the Norwegian s.s. Prometheus. During the War he was frequently in the North Sea, but was lucky enough to escape the attentions of submarines.

Suffering from a fractured skull, after a fall from a bicycle while riding near Shing Mun Valley, a Chinese male, Leung Ching-sam, was admitted to the Kowloon Hospital on Friday afternoon.

O.B.E., and Miss Dowbiggin dined at Government House.

In the evening His Excellency and Lady Southern attended by Captain W. J. R. Cragg, A.D.C., and accompanied by Lt. Col. H. B. L. Dowbiggin, O.B.E., and Miss Dowbiggin, were present at the Victoria Recreation Club swimming Gala.

RETURNED BANISHEE

Sentenced Twice For Same Offence

Wan Kwong Hung, aged 34, was yesterday morning sentenced to six months' hard labour by Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Central Police Court yesterday morning for returning from banishment. Defendant was banished for ten years in January 1926. He had been sentenced once before for being in the Colony while being banished.

Asked why he had returned again, defendant said that he was under the impression that the term had expired.

HOW OUGHT WE TO SPEND SUNDAY?

PURITANICAL IDEA WAS NOT CHRIST'S

DAY FOR WORSHIP, REST AND RECREATION

(By The Rev. J. N. Lewis Bryan)

PEOPLE often speak of the good old days in contrast to the twentieth century; but the truth of the matter is that the good old days are so-called because of the general discontent with the days in which we live. There are mighty few people who talk about them that would have cared to live in them.

It is the same with Sunday. In the past it has been far more flagrantly violated than ever it is to-day. At one time it was not uncommon for whole families to spend Sunday in the nearest tavern, drinking and singing until dark, and often ending in brawls of the worst kind.

In England, in Elizabeth's time, the observance of Sunday was at a very low ebb. One writer of the day went so far as to write: "The lower orders devoted Sunday to the worship of the great Spirit Glee . . . and there you may see them crowding and jostling . . . meantime the streets are turned into a market." There is no doubt that some Sundays of old were purely days of roystering and gaiety.

The Mediaeval Sunday Outrages were committed then that would shock the modern mind. The Sundays that were not marked by rowdiness were, in endless cases, days of almost cruel restriction. Ruskin said "The horror of Sunday used even to cast its gloom as far back into the week as Friday . . . and all the glory of Monday, with Church seven days removed again, was no equivalent for it."

What shall we do with Sunday? One man will tell you that the only way to observe it is as a day the Sabbath Day. Even educated people call Sunday the Sabbath. Even the clergy do. But Sabbath lasts for 24 hours, from six o'clock on Friday evening. If you tell the Sabbatarian that he ought to observe the Sabbath on the proper day, he replies at once that this day, but not the principle, has been changed.

Christ And The Sabbath But by whom? There is no junction in the New Testament. But you do come across the startling suggestion, made by Christ Himself, that the Sabbath was made for man, not man for the Sabbath. Those were the days when strict Jews would not poke a fire, or trim a lamp, or walk more than a certain distance on the Sabbath, or pull a man out of a ditch. They had a false idea of the Sabbath, as many have now a false idea of Sunday.

The Gentile converts of the early church were not compelled to conform to the Jewish Sabbath. Those who were grounded in the Hebrew religion no doubt kept it up to a point, influenced by tradition. They observed the first day of the week, the weekly reminder of the Resurrection. It was a weekly Easter, and Christians were expected to observe it by worship, not more cessation of work. You ceased to hoe your potatoes, and plough your land.

They were called to the "assembling of themselves together" (as St. Paul puts it) and to cease from servile work. For the rest, they were free. Only their freedom was not to be a burden on others. That is the point. If others have to work that we may have pleasure, then it is wrong, because it denies to them the opportunity of worship for themselves.

The Ideal Sunday

"The ideal Sunday is made up of worship, rest, and recreation, and the Church is gradually getting to that ideal." Such were the words recently of the Bishop of Croydon. People must be made to realise that the Church does not represent gloomy religion, or if it does there is something wrong somewhere.

Keeble, the author of the hymn, "Sun of my Soul," instituted cricket and football matches in his parish every Sunday afternoon.

old "Blues" usually put on a great deal of flesh. Guy's father, known on the Stock Exchange to everyone as "Tom," was a big man, and had also been famous in an earlier generation. His younger brother Vivian was also a "Blue," but never achieved such fame. The sons went into the same business. Another mainstay of the same famous crew was Lord Amthill, who became Governor of Madras, and still keeps up his interest in India. The most "stylish" ear and the most symmetrically developed of the eight, however—a regular Apollo—was R.P.P. Rowe, who is now an authority on "reconditioning" alum houses. On the whole rowing has not produced so many men of public fame as other sports, such as cricket.

ST. AIDAN & ST. ALOPEN

THE commemoration of these two saints at the Cathedral on Monday night was most effectively organised, and the eloquent and he and Charlotte Yonge used to go and watch the games. Charles Kingsley played with his boys on Sunday afternoons on the village green.

And they filled their churches.

As long as games are kept private, and freed from commercial interests, there can be no harm in them. As long as they are not held during hours when the worship of the Churches is going on, forming a counter-attraction, they cannot do harm. It is dangerous to have people loafing and idling anywhere, and the provision of some means of occupying out-of-church hours is definitely essential.

The ideal Sunday may be summed up in two versions of the same word—recreation, then recreation. The recreation of our soul-life, then the recreation of our bodies and minds.

People who pinch the whole day for the latter are merely dishonest.

addresses given by the Reverend Mr. Foster served to remind us that the history of Christianity in China now covers a period of 1,300 years. Perhaps some misunderstanding may have been caused by the statement that Aidan, who was sent south-westward from Iona, was the first missionary to "our forefathers," taking for granted that we are all descended from the Saxons and Angles. Very interesting history can be written of the adventures of Christian teachers among the Britons, who found refuge in Wales (where they had a large Christian University) before the time of Aidan, in Cornwall, in the mountains of Scotland and the Hebrides, and of course Ireland, as Mr. De Valera has been reminding us. By the way, Aidan had some trouble in retaining the Irish Easter—a fruitful cause of dissension).

Mr. Foster said that Alopen was probably a Persian. But the "Nestorian Stone," discovered in 1925, says he came from Judaea. That probably means that he was a Syrian, where the Church had 40,000 members. There were 25 ecclesiastical Provinces and seventy Bishops in Asia, all of which were wiped out by the rise of Mahometanism, either by the rapid method of massacre or the slower process of tyranny. The Nestorians accepted the Nicene Creed and held themselves to be absolutely orthodox; but they were anathematised both by Constantinople and by Rome on grounds which no longer interest the modern world and would, as a matter of fact, be very hard to explain to anyone but a trained theologian. Alopen taught not only in Sinfu, but in Peiping, which was then called Kambaluk.

NEW JUSTICE OF THE PEACE

His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government has been pleased to appoint Mr. John Bernard Prentis to be an Official Justice of the Peace for the Colony of Hong Kong.

Should Women dread the approach of a perfectly natural event?

NATURE never intended you to suffer unduly. Why is it then that so many thousands of women experience such pain and weakness.

Simply because there is a shortage of vital minerals in the body.

That is the reply, supported by the best medical opinion. Calcium is the vital food of every body cell, and any shortage hinders the correct performance of all bodily functions, particularly those of women.

The use of Kalzana, the mineral food, for a few weeks provides the whole system with the indispensable minerals needed to establish that care-free, vigorous health that Nature intended you to enjoy.

But it must be Kalzana, as only in this scientific form (a combination of sodium-lactate and calcium-lactate) will the mineral salts be taken up and retained by your body.

Lose your dread—re-establish the functions on a normal basis by starting a course of Kalzana to-day.

HONG KONG, SUNDAY, JULY 14, 1935.

The Lido

GREAT are the uses of advertisement. The fame of the Venetian original of the bathing and sunning places from Repulse Bay to Hyde Park is really quite modern. Venice, with her ancient traditions of commercial empire and romance, a city of canals instead of streets, where Shylock and Portia and Bassanio and all the rest used to meet on the Rialto, to bargain and intrigue to the sound of ripples from passing gondolas lapping the curb of the sidewalk, no doubt suggests an ideal place for bathing. The reality is very different. Quite probably Bassanio had never bathed in his life; there was no such habit. And in any case the Turneresque sunsets, the Canaletto-arrangements of lateen sails with a background of marble palaces, omit two very important items—the mosquitoes and the smells, particularly the smells.

With trade disastrously dwindling, even in the sale of her famous glass, and the stream of tourists falling to a trickle as the world depression spread to her patrons, what was Venice to do? Beyond the city-soiled canals and harbour there was a bit of beach open to the Adriatic waves; there was this new fashion of sun-bathing, so popular on the Riviera; why not make it convenient for visitors to enjoy these primitive delights of water and air—provided by nature free of charge—and establish the old city as a modern spa? It was an inspiration of genius. Sun-bathing is a procession of artist's models who make no charge for a sitting. Advertisement did the rest.

Venice is not, of course, built out into the sea. It consists of low-level islands, to which early fishermen resorted to escape from the raids of warlike neighbours, and which are now completely built over. Before the city was there, one would have seen nothing but reed-covered mud flats, such as one still sees on the nearby mainland. Nature did nothing for Venice compared with what anyone can see who drives out to Repulse Bay by Pokfulam. Nor has she done as much for any of the famous resorts. The sea is always the same, though its moods vary from day to day; but the sea put into a picture with wooded islands and rocky headlands is what has inspired the poets of all the ages. Even the blasé Byron was carried off his feet by "the isles of Greece, the isles of Greece, where burning Sappho loved and sung"—carried away so far as to lay down his life at Missolonghi in an attempt to free such beauty from the tyranny of the Turk.

Do what we will to the sea—and everything we do is an outrage, pouring into it refuse and rubbish, ashes and cinders, poisonous oil—all these abominations, as Shelley said, "suffer a sea-change." The sea is the great cleanser, even of these very solid abominations. That it is the great cleanser of harassed brains and frayed nerves we all know by experience. It may be a fanciful speculation of the evolutionists, who sometimes mix a little imagination with their observations, but there is a theory that what is needed by our bodies, tired by the struggle and hustle of a speeded-up civilisation, is a return to some stage of prior existence, and that the healing effect of a swim is due to the fact that life passed through a marine stage, and though it was aeons ago that we struggled on to land, there is a subconscious something that delights to feel the swish of the waves again. The greatest of the Greek poets put the same idea into the greatest of his odes. All our human industries are built on the use of fire; which was stolen from Olympus and given to man by Prometheus, and according to the old legend the gods in revenge chained him on the top of a high mountain and there left him to contemplate. There he found consolation, not in the ring of hammer on anvil, but in the "deep air of Heaven, the flutter of swift-winged breezes, and the many-rippled laughter of the waves."

As Lady Southern so truly said on Friday, such reviving communion with Nature comes more easily if we have a private bathing beach. But as we are not all millionaires we can find comfort in the reflection that the mind is free: it has a great power of ignoring circumstances and forgetting Dictators and Dollar-dictators. It can sympathise with the modern Wordsworth when he says that the world is too much with us, and exclaims:

Great God! I'd rather be
A pagan suckled in a creed outworn—
So might I, standing on this pleasant lea,
Have glimpses that would make me less forlorn;
Have sight of Proteus rising from the sea
Or hear old Triton blow his wreathed horn.

GUY NICKALLS

THE death of Guy Nickalls in hospital from the effects of a motor accident while he was driving up to Scotland for a shooting engagement can hardly be compared with the loss of T. E. Lawrence, which was an international event; but it is surprising that it has passed with so little comment, for he also was at one time a king in his own domain. His authority was unquestioned on "The River" in the days before the River had been displaced as everyman's field of recreation by the all-conquering motor-car. He was the soul of Oxford rowing when Oxford was winning the Boat Race with the same monotony as Cambridge does to-day; and he pushed Magdalen to the top of the river and kept it there till his last year. But he was no ordinary "Blue." He was the hero of Henley in the days when no foreign crew had yet won the Grand Challenge. I remember seeing him on one afternoon win the Diamond Sculls, win the Pairs with the present Lord Ampthill, and stroke Magdalen to win the Ladies' Plate. He was the god and friend of all the Thames watermen, to whom he was always just "Guy."

SPORT AND MUSCLES

NATURALLY his physical development was unusual; his shoulders were broad, and when sitting at table even in evening dress he gave one the impression of magnificent muscular development; but curiously enough this was not quite carried out when one saw him walking, for his short thin legs did not correspond. All the same it was not safe to say so. I recall one afternoon in the summer of 1891 when he was sitting having a drink after the usual splash, next to a man who incautiously referred to his "spindleshanks." Without moving off his chair he stretched out his legs, caught between them one of the ankles of the offending pal, and gave his leg a twist which made him yell for mercy. Whether the riverside still keeps up the tradition that rowing cannot be first-rate without a fluent vocabulary I do not know; but it was then quite common to drop something from a bridge on to a barge, or give some other similar annoyance, in the hope of picking up a new and lurid combination. I happened to be on the towpath when Magdalen lost the headship of the river by being bumped opposite the "Varsity boat-house, after almost superhuman efforts by Guy to shove off the bump. When the boat came to the side Guy wished to be informed why he should be expected to row a lot of passengers over the course; but the method of the enquiry is more suitable for memory than record.

ROWING AS A SPORT

ONE of the drawbacks to rowing is that it takes up all a man's time during the years when he is at his best, but afterwards cannot be kept up unless he happens to live near a river and a club. The consequence is that

DISTRIBUTION OF AWARDS

The distribution of prizes and diplomas won for the 4th, 5th and 6th terms of the Chung-Shing Institute of Commerce and the 17th typewriting graduation, was held on Friday night at the Chinese Y.M.C.A., the Hon. President, Dr. S. F. Lam, presiding.

In the course of the evening the report of the Director of the Institute, Mr. C. S. In the course of further remarks, Dr. Lam said, in part:—

"Fifteen years ago there was no commercial school in the Colony. Now there are several of them offering useful business courses such as Accounting, Shipping, Banking, Economics, Foreign Trade, etc. The oppor-

Hong Kong Personalities

MR. K. S. LARSEN

This is the fiftieth of the exclusive series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Konya, the talented Hungarian artist.

OUR Personality this week is Mr. Karsten Severin Larssen, Consul for Denmark and Consul also for Norway. Born at Drammen, Norway, in 1880, Mr. Larssen went to sea at the age of 17, passing successfully through all grades to that of Captain. It is interesting to note that Mr. Larssen gained his Master Mariner's ticket in Hong Kong in 1905, eight years after he first went to sea. For some years he was sailing, mostly on the Siberian coast, as master of the Norwegian steamer Prosper, at that time under charter to the Russian Volunteer Fleet.

Leaving the sea temporarily in 1911, he spent a year in England superintending the building of ships for Hans Kjaer and Company, of Drammen, and in 1912 returned to sea as master of the s.s. Prosper III, sailing in the North and South Atlantic trade till 1915. In 1917 all the vessels belonging to Messrs. Hans Kjaer and Co. were sold to Messrs. H. M. Wronnell and Co., of Haugesund, Norway, now represented locally by Messrs. Karsten Larssen and Co.

The World of 2035

been driven out of life by a knowledge of the basic chemistry involved.

WOULD you like to see what this world will be like in 2035, one hundred years from now? Very well, just have a look through the eyes of a chemist. One hundred years from now—

Any woman who wants to remain at the age of 18, in appearance and feeling—or at any other age she may fancy—will be able to do so. And she can remain at that age for 1,000 years, if she likes.

Any man may pick out any age he chooses and, barring violent accidents, live at that age for as long as he pleases.

Any farmer will be able, at will, to raise chickens the size of pigs, which will lay eggs as big as footballs. He will be able to raise hogs as big as cows, and bulls as big as elephants—if he so desires. The chemist will, by 2035, be able to supply him with synthetic hormones with which to feed his poultry and cattle, which will accomplish this.

A new kind of gasoline will enable aeroplanes, which now travel no more than 300 miles an hour, to zip over land and sea at 500 m.p.h.

Now, wait a minute—before any more "unbelievable" predictions are listed—it may be said that this gasoline has already been discovered; NOW, in 1935, not 2035.

AT the recent annual meeting of the American Chemical Society, in New York, attended by thousands of America's leading chemists, Thomas Midgley, who won the William H. Nicholas Medal several years ago for his discovery of ethyl fluid, pointed out that future increase of aeroplane speed and safety would be aided by greater strength and lightness of materials used in constructing aeroplanes.

"Engineering is already waiting," said Mr. Midgley, "for chemistry to give it a fuel which will be capable of releasing more energy per pound than is required to lift that pound out of the earth's gravitational field."

THE predictions of what men and women will be able to do 100 years from now continue, as expressed by Mr. Midgley, who is not only a practical chemist but a practical business man; he is vice-president of the Ethyl Gasoline Corp., of Detroit, Michigan. He declares:—

Most of the diseases of mankind will have disappeared, banished by chemistry.

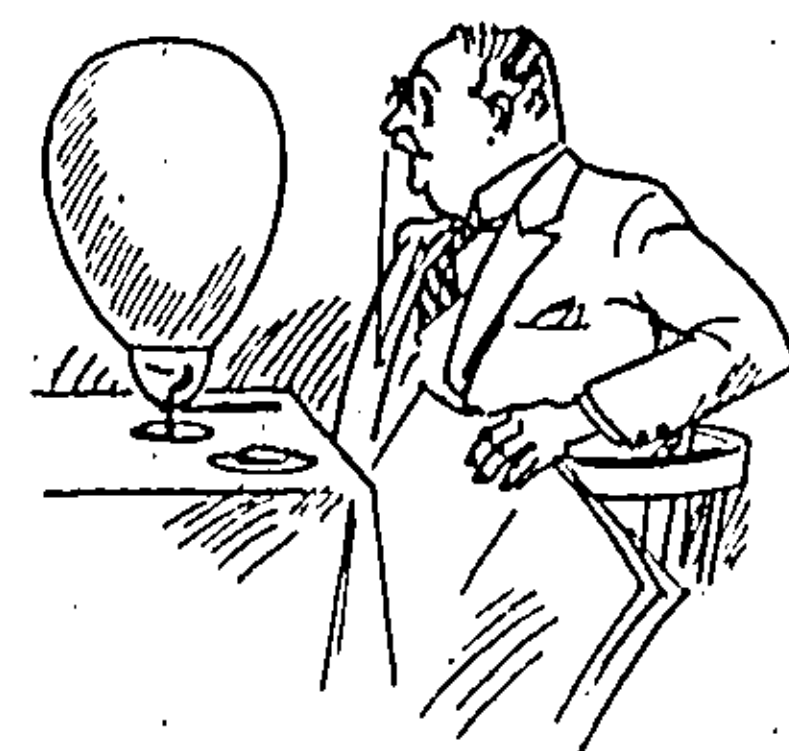

The dreadful scourge, cancer, will be under control, for its chemistry will have become known.

Colds and influenza will have

Dental chemistry will have led to a relatively simple and effective hygiene for preserving the teeth. Toothbrushes will no longer be needed.

Tuberculosis, diabetes, blood-poisoning will have been ended by a fuller knowledge of preventive and curative chemistry.

Indigestion will be unknown.

Eggs as big as footballs!

"With the discovery of certain hormones in the stomach of the boa-constrictor," said Mr. Midgley, "and their subsequent synthesis, it will no longer be necessary to stay up after eating, in order to digest one's dinner—just a pill, and right to bed."

She has been 18 for 1,000 years!

Bad dreams will be banished. "The mentally lazy, and these are always a majority, will select the particular dream 'isomer' they desire for the night from their supply of totally harmless sleeping tablets, and go to sleep. These tablets are made (in 2035) in various isomers, each isomer producing some certain type of dream."

VISITING will be done by television. Mass assemblies will be a thing of the past. "Suppose a meeting of the American Chemical Society is in progress. There is no longer any central meeting place with the nuisance of getting there. The radio commission merely assigns a wave length and the committee arranges a programme."

This, too, is a prediction whose fulfillment seems certain long before 100 years have passed. By March 1, 1936, according to an announcement made since Mr. Midgley's prediction, people telephoning will be able to see each other, though separated by hundreds of miles.

Aeroplanes travelling 1,000 miles an hour are less than 100 years away—"just around the corner," in fact, says Mr. Midgley. With them, trips to the moon and to Mars and Venus are only a step away. But, he adds, before this is accomplished chemists will have to provide Mars with water and Venus with a new atmosphere.

Among young people, 100 years from now, "growing pains" will have been eliminated, thus enabling them to grasp mental problems easily, with the result that college graduates in that era "could enter any of our research laboratories of the present day and solve our most intricate problems overnight."

AS for warfare, according to Mr. Midgley, "should some arch fiend succeed in producing an offensive device of such potency that entire populations may be eradicated, just as certainly some genius will arise and discover a means to render this device innocuous."

Agriculture will be so different, 100 years from now, says this chemist, that no farmer living today would recognise it. New plants will have been created by man. Many vegetable products, now made only by Nature, will be made synthetically in the laboratory. Many plant materials now regarded as waste products, such as corn stalks, will have a new value, converted by chemists to new uses.

And in the year 2035, says Mr. Midgley, the ordinary man will warm his house by pushing a button, cool it in hot weather by also pushing a button; wear a new suit every day—new clothing being cheap enough to throw away daily. He will need to work less than two hours in 24, and will be starting off healthily and happily on a life which will last 5,000 years—if he wants to do so.

None of these things, Mr. Midgley emphasises, oversteps the boundaries of the accepted laws of Nature. So, believe it or not, there is your world, one hundred years from now. And you cannot very well tell Mr. Midgley that he is wrong—for it is very unlikely that you will be here in 2035 to prove it.

SOMETHING more than fresh air, exercise and good food is needed to keep children in vigorous good health. Regular sleep is all important.

Long experience proves that 'Ovaltine' is the best bed-time beverage for ensuring sound, natural sleep. Moreover 'Ovaltine' provides all the nourishment required for building up new strength, energy and vitality during the hours of sleep.

Avoid haphazard mixtures of cocoa and chocolate which claim to be just as good. There is nothing just as good as 'Ovaltine'.

Local Art Guild

FOUR members of the local Art Club, Mrs. A. N. Macfadyen, Mrs. O. P. Joce, Mr. Nicholson and Mr. Luis Chan, have just begun a most enterprising experiment. They have taken a studio in which it will now be possible for members of the Art Club to work on four days during the week.

Mrs. Macfadyen, in speaking to me of their plans, said that they had been particularly lucky getting such a light and pleasant studio in so central a position as that above the Peak Tram at Kennedy Road. Mr. Wang, another member of the Art Club, is to give classes at the studio, and it is possible that Miss von Chauvin, an artist but recently arrived from London, will also be taking pupils there.

Such a studio could be useful to many, not only for the possibility of taking classes but also for doing private work. It is only unfortunate, says Mrs. Macfadyen, that they are starting during the hot weather, but she feels that while only a few are inclined to begin work now, more will probably be attracted to join as soon as arrangements are complete and all is running smoothly.

Bolivian Minister Passes Through

DR. Juan Salinas de Lozada, Bolivian Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Japan and China, passed through the Colony during last week on his way to take up his new post in Tokyo. During his 25 years of diplomatic services to his country he has had the diplomatic representation of Bolivia in Peru, Argentine, Uruguay, Paraguay, Chile, Ecuador and Italy.

The Bolivian Minister, Madame and Mlle. Salinas de Lozada were entertained during their short stay by Mr. C. H. Basto, the local Bolivian Consul, at a Chinese tiffin. After tiffin the party went to Repulse Bay. At dinner they were the guests of Mr. E. Rouillon. The following day Dr. and Mme. Salinas de Lozada entertained Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Siedlecki and Mr. E. Rouillon to tiffin at the Hong Kong Hotel. Mrs. Siedlecki looked very smart in a blue and white spotted crepe-de-chine costume, while Mme. Salinas de Lozada was dressed in a yellow silk crepe frock.

In spite of the inclement weather, the Bolivian Minister and his family were able to see the sights of Hong Kong. They were delighted with Repulse Bay and declared that the Colony was extraordinarily beautiful both by day and by night. Mlle. Yvonne Salinas de Lozada was particularly impressed with Hong Kong and not in the least deterred by the heat.

Women's International Club

THE Hong Kong Women's International Club, one of the "pet children" of Lady Southorn, is still growing in popularity, especially now that it boasts of new and attractive premises. It is certainly the most pleasant rendezvous in town, and is not really strictly for ladies; in the afternoons it is possible for members to invite gentlemen friends to tea.

One of the latest attractions is a course of beginner's English for Chinese members, which Mr. Wells is conducting with the help of Mrs. Wells.

Shanghai Cantonese Choir

ON Wednesday evening the Shanghai Cantonese Union Church Choir gave a concert of sacred music in St. John's Cathedral. The Cathedral was packed and the Chinese community es-start the programme.

The patience of the public was well rewarded as the choir gave a good rendering of their repertoire, which included such items as "Wachet Auf! Ruft Uns Die Stimme," by Bach, "Prayer" by Beethoven, and "Rejoice In The Lord" by Lyon.

Mr. J. Y. Ma, well-known as a great lover of music, entertained the whole choir after the performance at his home in Kennedy Road.

Anna May Wong's Sister

MISS Wong Ying, the film actress who has come to live in Hong Kong, entertained friends to dinner on Friday evening at the Kwong Chow Cafe in West Point. Her brother James had recently arrived from America and Miss Wong Ying was happy to introduce him to her friends.

Before she came to stay in Hong Kong, Miss Wong Ying had a busy time in the pictures. Hong Kong film-goers will remember her in the leading role of the film "Eskimo." Spending months in the snow and ice must have been rather an ordeal for one accustomed to the pleasant mildness of the Californian climate! She found it a valuable experience, however! Miss Wong Ying's sister, the famous film star Anna May Wong, has been making a tour through Europe. She writes to say that she saw the performance of the Chinese play "Lady Precious Stream" in London and enjoyed it immensely.

Mr. Sit Kok Sin, right, of Hong Kong and Dr. Mak Ting Sum, D.M.T., D.S.T., F.P.C. (Lond.), M.N.A., M.Th. (Lond.), left, of Kuala Lumpur, have been recently admitted to Membership of the Societe Internationale de Philologie, Sciences et Beaux Arts, London.

Nervous Diseases

THE recent opening of the Hospital of Mercy in Shanghai emphasises the need here for some institution which will be exclusively devoted to the observation and treatment of nervous diseases. The Mental Hospital is part of the Government Civil Hospital and is run simply as a department of that institution; this is not enough. Such enormous strides have been made recently in the care and treatment of the mentally sick that the subject is coming more and more to be treated as one for specialisation. No one wishes to deny the efforts of those responsible for the care of mentally deranged people here, but it is admitted by all theorists and practical workers in this field that it is a whole time job, needing special training and a very special brand of sympathy, patience and understanding. However, good local conditions are there is still room for improvement.

Conditions Elsewhere

A play called "Sunshine House" produced in London some time last year dealt exclusively with the conditions obtaining in a private mental home, and caused a great deal of public interest. In the course of an extensive correspondence to the more responsible daily and weekly papers, it became evident that even in these up-to-date and generally expensive institutions there were only too many abuses which needed correction. And, of course, the whole system by which a man is certified for admission into a public or private asylum has been such a problem in England that a specially appointed Government Commission examined the question there and reported thereon quite recently.

Perhaps in no department of medicine is there so much guessing and theorising as in the care of the mentally sick; and it is a bad sign that while there is any amount of high-sounding jargon attached to the science—witness "occupational therapy" and other highfaluting phrases—practically nothing is known about the actual cure, as opposed to the treatment, of incipient insanity. This makes the care of the insane more a whole time job than ever,

ABOUT TOWN

with the necessity Best Traders On Earth

DISCUSSING the future possibilities of American trade with China, Judge Paul Linebarger, for 28 years the foreign legal adviser of the Sun Yat-sen revolutions and present legal adviser to the National Government, said in an interview: "The Chinese are the best traders on earth, but they haven't a chance to use their ability because the rest of the world is not ready to do business with them in their own highly enterprising way."

Captain David Thomas

THE China Coast lost an old and popular shipping hand on Sunday last with the departure of Captain David Thomas, who up to the end of June was the Master of the well-known coaster New Mathilde. Captain Thomas left for England aboard the N.D.L. Donau on well-earned retirement, his wife, a popular figure in Kowloon and St. Andrew's Church circles, accompanying him. Captain Thomas first came to the China Coast in 1919 for H. M. H. Nemazee and Co., in whose employ he remained until 1928, since when he has been on the s.s. Tin Yat, Borneo, and New Mathilde as Master. The popular couple intend spending their time between Borth, Cardiganshire, Wales, of which place Captain Thomas is a native, and North London.

Punkahs v. Fans

THE people of Madras have decided that they prefer electric punkahs to fans, and these are being installed in a number of offices and private houses in the Presidency. Hardened residents in most Eastern towns—and there must be many here also—will tell you with fervour that the old-style punkah, pulled by a somnolent coolie with a rope attached to his toe, was a very much more efficient cooler than any electric fan, and I am not so sure that they are not right. At any rate the punkah does not mean the over-present risk of catching cold, which a continually playing electric fan generally does.

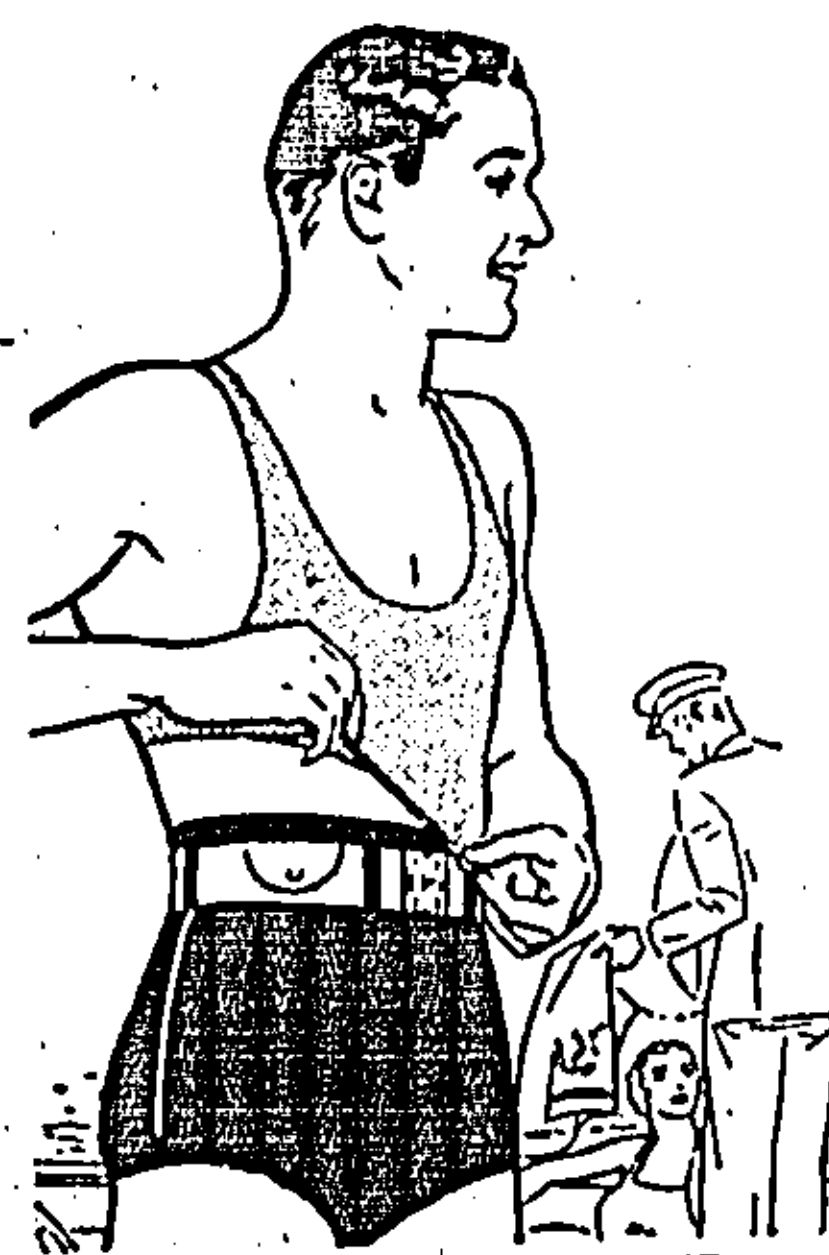

In this connection I remember an incident which may be thought amusing. Many years ago, when my father was in charge of the gaol at Mooltan, among the prisoners who came to the house daily to do work about the compound was a patriarchal looking old man of about 60, with a snow-white Imperial beard, who pulled the punkah. Somebody in the house wondered one day what he was "in" for. On enquiries being made it was found that this venerable gentleman, who looked as though he wouldn't hurt a fly, had received 15 years' rigorous imprisonment for homicide not amounting to murder. He was one of a gang of dacoits who sacked a village, plundering and murdering wholesale, the ringleader being sentenced to death and the others to varying terms of imprisonment. When the story became known he was treated with the utmost respect and awe by the children in the house, of which I was one.

The Wrong Way

IT is said that Mr. Motilal Nehru owes his implacable hatred of the British to the fact that when he returned to India after studying at Harrow and Trinity, Cambridge, having also been called to the Bar at one of the older Inns, he was black-balled for membership of the Amritsar Gymkhana Club by some youngster who felt that he was doing something clever by offering this gratuitous insult to a cultured and well-educated gentleman.

Much the same sort of littleness of mind was no doubt behind an incident I witnessed on the Star Ferry the other evening. A European, clad in the undress habiliments of a British Army officer, sat with his feet up on the seat in front of him in spite of several things: the obvious annoyance of the Chinese passenger, seated there, who objected to his clothes being soiled; his passenger's repeated requests to the person concerned to remove his feet; and a conspicuously displayed notice requesting passengers to refrain from this and another disgusting practice. To all protests the person concerned returned a blank stare and made not the slightest attempt to comply with a thoroughly reasonable and, indeed, completely justified, protest. Really the mentality of some people is past understanding.

Sports Chatter

Shanghai Aquatic Records

THOUGH Northern critics are pessimistic regarding Shanghai's chances of beating Hong Kong in the Swimming Interport next month, the visitors have a very fine 200 yards relay team in Ted Paget, former Hong Kong star sprinter, "Jappy" Grilk, Louie Oliveira and Archie Logan. On June 25 they broke the Shanghai record, which was set up in 1933 by Grilk, Noel Hammond, C. N. Brown, and Frank Hadley, by one and three-fifths seconds, in 1 min. 46 1-5 secs.

Bill Humber, the U.S. Marine who won the Diving Championship in the last Interport, is also a certainty, but whether Eddie Welz, the lanky U.S. Marine who on June 25 last shattered Otto Hagenstein's 100 yards breast-stroke record, established in 1931, by one and four-fifths seconds, in 79 1-5 secs., is problematical, as there is some doubt regarding his residential qualification. He is a recent arrival with the Fourth Regiment.

Don Leonard, the 220 yards free style champion in 1931, may also represent Shanghai down here.

South China Tour Delayed

THE South China touring soccer team which should have left the Colony on Monday last for Saigon, the Straits, Java, and Burma, was unavoidably prevented from doing so on account of several of the players being unable to get away from their business houses. They are due to leave to-morrow by the s.s. Lyeo Moon under the management of Mr. Ho Yung-kwong.

I understand that the tourists, when they meet the Singapore and Malayan Chinese on their way back to the Colony, will not contest the Ho Ho Interport soccer trophy.

The trophy has an interesting history, being first competed for over five years ago. Although the Hong Kong Chinese have recorded the majority of wins, they have been unable to send a team to Malaya, or rather Singapore, for several seasons.

An official of the South China Athletic Association told me that they had been invited to make the trip this year, but had been unable to do so owing to financial reasons.

The Ho Ho series does not guarantee any financial support other than gate receipts, and with this in view the local Chinese Committee have seen fit to wait until early next year, when the All-China team, which will probably be comprised of 95 per cent. of South China footballers, will contest the trophy on their way south, en route to Berlin.

By the Judge

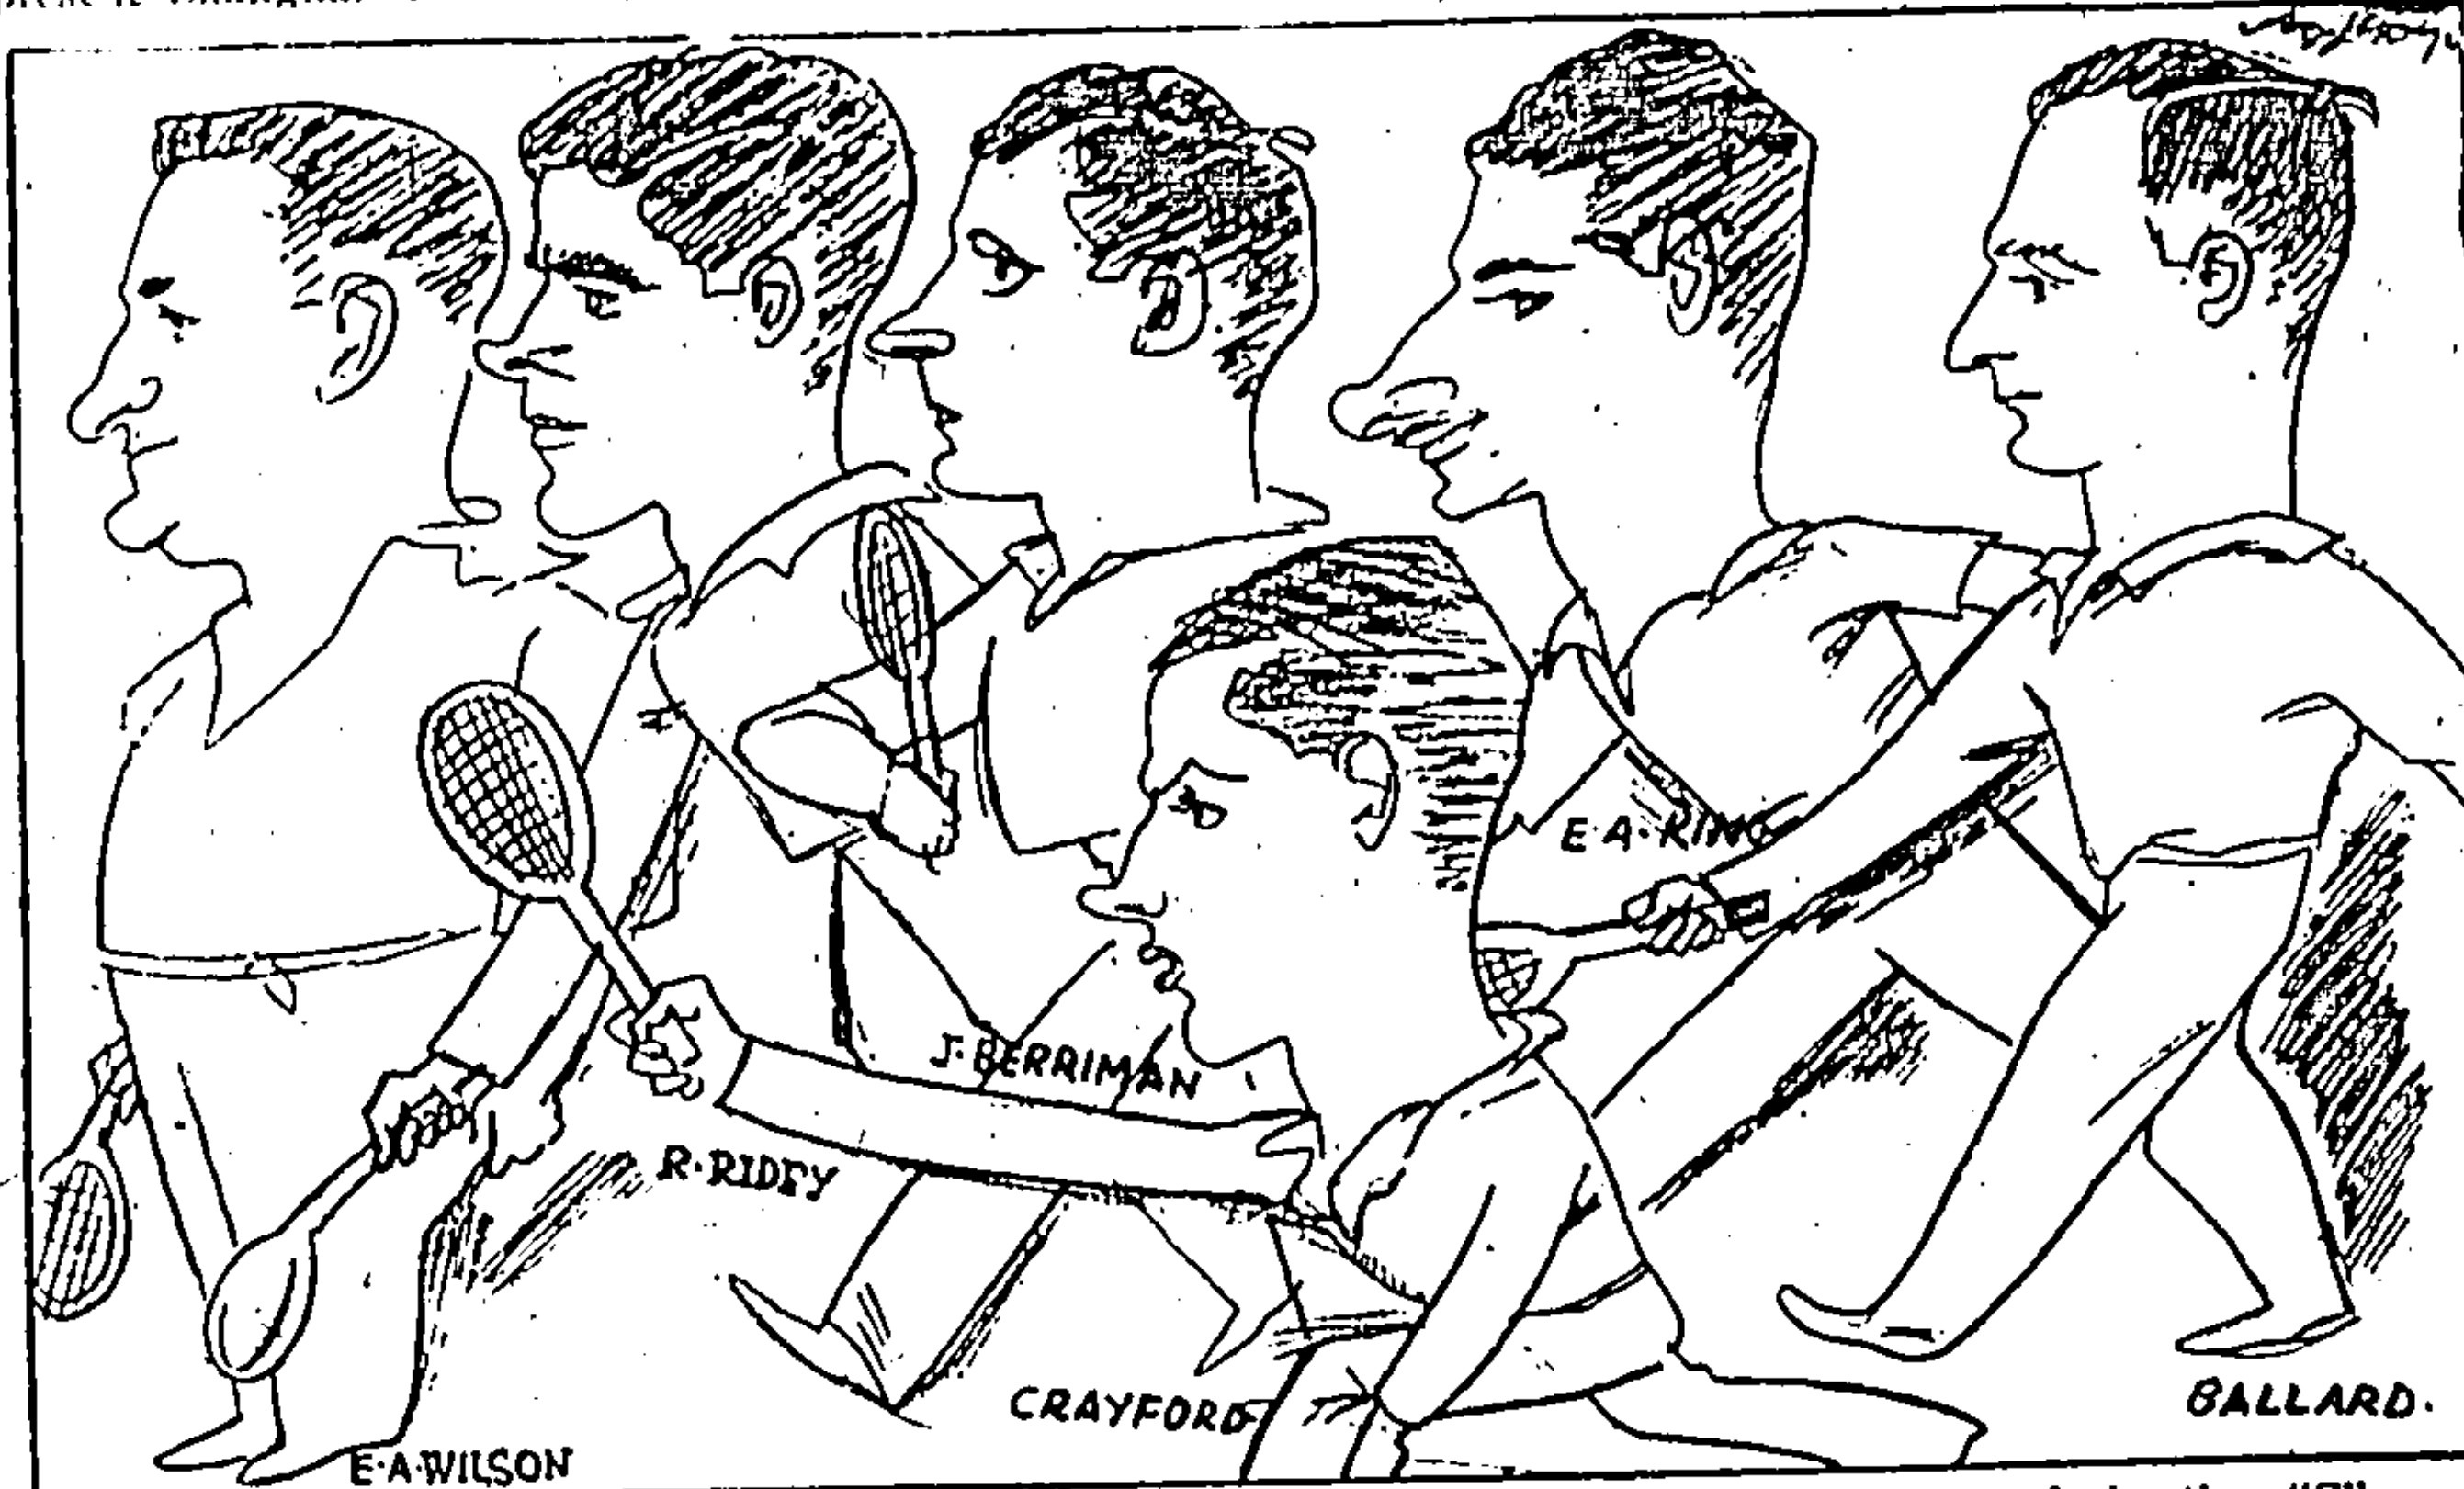

Following their debut appearance against the European "Y" last Wednesday night, when they lost by the odd goal in three, the Lincolnshire Regiment's Battalion water-polo team will make their second appearance at the "Y" next Tuesday evening.

The Civil Service Cricket Club's "B" Division Lawn Tennis League team will meet South China in their postponed game at King's Park on Friday next.

Y.M.C.A. Hockey Revival?

WITH the hockey season yet some months off, the European "Y" have already commenced their list of intending players, and to date over half a dozen names have been handed in. The "Y" were singularly unfortunate last season in that very poor support was given this section.

Among the newcomers this season is Nooy, who has succeeded W. Schreuder, the "Y's" brilliant water-polo player, in the Java China-Japan Line. Nooy, I understand, has played hockey since his schooldays, and for many years has played in representative sides in Holland and in Java.

The Army Tennis Club's premier team, above, lost their 100 per cent. record in the "C" Division of the Lawn Tennis League when they were well beaten by the Club de Recreio last Thursday.

Shanghai's Young Team

SHANGHAI, who will be relying on a very young team this year, are staging triangular contests every week and are helping to defray the expenses of the trip south by charging spectators 50 cents each. By the way, they are not particularly keen on continuing the water polo game as a scoring factor in the Interport. Their contention is that the visiting team, on the score of additional expense, cannot possibly field a really first-class side. There is little doubt that this is true; the game should be played in the nature of an exhibition, thus allowing the visitors to bring as many specialists as they like without giving the polo any more than a passing thought.

No Letter To Colony
MR. C. A. Lopes, Hon. Secretary of the Victoria Recreation Club, and probably the leading personage in local Interport swimming, told me that that was the first he had heard of it. No further developments have taken place in regard to Interport arrangements, however, and the local body are now awaiting Shanghai's answer to the suggested dates for the event.

Neutral Linesmen

AMONG the new rules which will be submitted at the annual general meeting of the Hong Kong Football Association to-morrow provision for the appointment of neutral linesmen for all First Division matches will be made. This was advocated at one of the monthly meetings of the Referee's Association recently.

New Club's Leader

P. M. XAVIER, a veteran Recreio footballer, will be in charge of the football team of the Liga Portuguesa de Hong Kong. Souza, who filled the centre forward position in the Recreio's premier team in 1933, and Maher, who also played in the First Division side that season, are among other Recreio players who have signed on for the new Club.

Following their suspension by the Hong Kong Football Association last season, most of the soccer members of the Radio Sports Club have since turned their attention to hockey. So great has been their improvement that it is now very doubtful whether they will be entering the F.A. League this season! A meeting will decide further action next week.

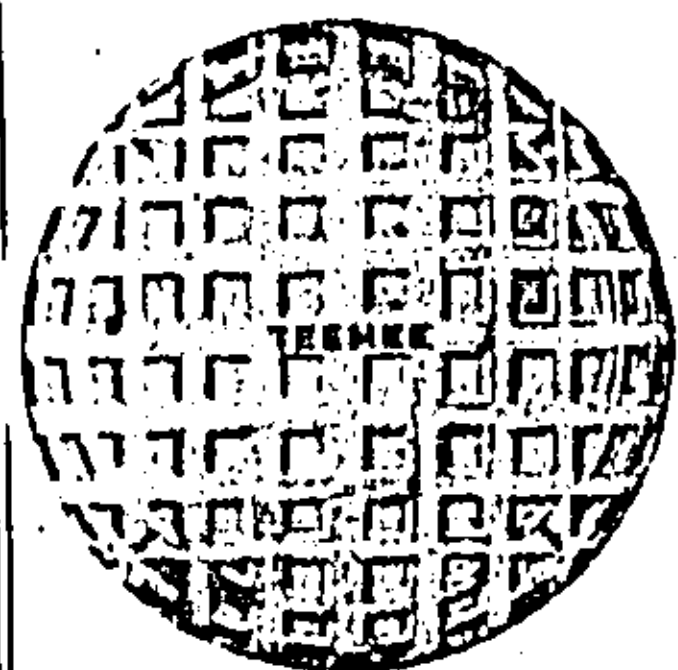

Lady Swimmer Leaving

MRS. Meade, who made a welcome reappearance at European "Y" galas last Wednesday night, is unfortunately leaving for the North at the end of the month and will probably be away for the better part of the swimming season.

Guy's Distinction

L. Guy, the Bowling Green skip has a unique distinction. He is the only bowler in the Club's history who has won the Club Championship, the President's Prize, and the Vice-President's Prize in the same year.

R. Hall, the Bowling Green player who is at present on Home leave, reached the finals or semi-finals of nearly every conceivable competition during a bowling career that dates back more than a decade, but he has yet to win a title! A. Hamilton, formerly of Taikoo, was another bowler with a similar record. He was acknowledged as one of the Club's best players, but never won a single competition.

Moonlight Picnic

Moonlight bathing picnics organised by several Clubs and Associations were well attended last night.

Under the care of Mr. E. F. Fincher, over 45 members of the St. Andrew's Club spent an enjoyable evening at Big Wave Bay, while the Kowloon Tong Anglican Church moonlight picnic, organised by the Men's Fellowship, took place at Repulse Bay. Over 40 members and their friends boarded the Hong Kong-Yaumat Ferry launch "Man Fat", which left the Police Pier, Kowloon, at 8 p.m. The picnic-makers returned shortly after 11 p.m.

UNIVERSITY OF HONG KONG

Calendar For 1935

MINE OF INFORMATION FOR STUDENTS AND OTHERS

The Calendar for 1935 of the University of Hong Kong, which has just been issued, is a compilation of data of the University which should prove of inestimable value both to the intending student and to all who are interested in this great educational centre.

Beginning with a short history of the University, from its incorporation in 1911 to the present day, and a description of its various buildings and extensions, the Calendar goes on with a succession list of Chancellors, Vice-Chancellors, Treasurers and Deans of the three Faculties of the University—Medicine, Engineering and Arts, followed by the full text of the University Ordinance of 1911, with amendments and changes made in 1920, 1925 and 1927.

The rest of the Calendar is taken up with the general regulations of the University, tables of course fees and examination fees and full curricula and regulations of the three Faculties, together with particulars, conditions of award and tenure of the various classes of scholarships tenable at the University.

Man Robbed Of Trousers Being Used As Pillow

A pair of trousers stolen from an Indian boy, Master A. K. Sonderam, while he was asleep, led to the downfall of an unemployed Chinese, Chau Chan, who was sentenced to six weeks' hard labour by Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Police Court yesterday morning for theft.

In outlining the case, Detective-Sergeant Fitches stated that on Thursday night the complainant thought he would not be able to get home as it was very late, so he spent the night in the Children's Playground at Wanchai. He discarded his trousers and used them for a pillow.

The ex-husband Harry Barnister, who is asking for little Jane's custody, would be unable to meet the expense, says Miss Harding.

SOVIET'S NEW ENEMY DORIOT'S UNCEASING STRUGGLE AGAINST FRANCO-RUSSIAN PACT

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Paris, Yesterday.

Another advocate for a Franco-German rapprochement has just appeared in the person of the Deputy Doriot, Mayor of the Paris working men's suburb of St. Denis, who was some time ago expelled from the Communist Party for his views and who has since then untiringly opposed the Franco-Russian alliance because of the perilous influence exerted by the Soviet Union on the People's Front in France.

CHINESE ARTIST TO VISIT COLONY

FAMOUS FEMALE
IMPERSONATOR

May Make Local Appearance

The famous Chinese female impersonator, Mei Lan-fang, who gave a series of stage performances in the course of his tour through Russia and Europe, is expected to arrive here in the middle of next month.

This famous stage actor was one of the group of Chinese artists which included China's "Greta Garbo," Miss Butterfly Wu, who arrived here for a short stay on Thursday, July 4.

At Moscow invitations were extended to all the members of the group to appear on the stage. Mei Lan-fang was the only to accept the invitation. He was given a rousing welcome on his arrival there.

Local admirers of Mei Lan-fang are already making preparations to welcome him and are also contemplating arranging for him to appear on the stage of one of the popular theatres here.

TAI MO SHAN AS TRAINING SHIP

Admiralty Property

News has been received in Hong Kong that the sailing boat TAI MO SHAN, in which five Naval Officers sailed from Hong Kong to Dartmouth, a distance of 16,000 miles, in 1933, is now the property of the Admiralty and is being used for practical instruction and sailing experience by the young naval officers at Gosport.

The TAI MO SHAN was built by the Hong Kong and Whampoa Dockyard Company in 1933 and sailed from Hong Kong in May of that year for England; after a year's sailing the five officers landed safely in Dartmouth. The vessel is 54 feet long and weighs 24 tons.

ALBANIAN SENSATION

PUBLIC WORKS MINISTER
ALLEGED SMUGGLER CHIEF

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Belgrade, Yesterday.

A sensation has been created in Albania and throughout the Balkans, according to press reports from Tirana, stating that the Albanian Minister of Public Works, M. Atim Sarraci, has been arrested on a charge of having been the leader of a widely ramified band of smugglers, who for months past have practically paralysed the Albanian State monopoly of cigarette paper by supplying the population with vast quantities of smuggled cigarette paper equal to two-thirds of the total consumption, so that the revenues derived from the State monopoly decreased proportionately.

All the efforts of the police to apprehend the smugglers proved unavailing until it was discovered that the smuggled goods were delivered to the State Ministry under the cloak of Government supplies. A domiciliary search at Minister Sarraci's residence resulted in a gardener being caught in the act of distributing smuggled cigarette paper to agents for sale. — Trans-Ocean Service.

BRITISH LEGION TO BE WELCOMED ON GERMAN VISIT

Full Week's Stay
In Berlin

EXTENSIVE PROGRAMME OF FUNCTIONS

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Berlin, Yesterday.

A cordial welcome to Germany is being eagerly prepared for the representatives of the British Legion, the great English war veterans' association, who arrive in Berlin to-morrow at 4 p.m. to stay for 10 days, during which time they will be received and entertained to a banquet by the three German war veterans' societies, the Steel Helmets, the Kyffhauserbund, and the National Socialist War Victims' Aid Society. The British party will consist of six officers led by Colonel Crossfield.

The programme provides for a full week's stay in Berlin, with visits to Hamburg, Munich and Cologne, during which time they will have an opportunity of discussing plans for collaboration with the leaders of the great German veterans' societies, but at the same time they will make closer acquaintance with the work of construction going on in the new Germany.

GUESTS AT FAMOUS HOTEL

In Berlin the guests will stay at the famous Hotel Kaiserhof. On Monday at 11 a.m. they will place a wreath on the German war memorial in Berlin, and in the afternoon they will visit the Stahnsdorf cemetery, where the British soldiers who died in captivity during the war are buried. In the evening a reception will be given by the Ambassador-at-Large, Herr von Ribbentrop.

HAMBURG ARRANGEMENTS

Hamburg will be visited by aeroplane, the whole day being spent there in seeing the Hagenbeck animal park, inspecting the port equipment, lunching on a Hamburg "America" liner, seeing the floating youth shelter and returning by air on Wednesday night. The historical Potsdam labour service camp, the Hitler Youth settlement, and a section of the new motor roads are among other prominent features of the programme.

Thursday will be devoted to "discussing business matters." Social events and sight-seeing are also projected for the stay at Munich.—Trans-Ocean Service.

YAUMATI FERRY CASE

Another Attempt To Travel Free

For attempting to travel on the Yaumati Ferry by using his brother's monthly ticket and thus trying to evade payment of his fare, Shek Wing Kai, an unemployed, was yesterday morning fined $15, in default 10 days' imprisonment, by Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Central Police Court.

Defendant was observed by a ticket collector to purchase a ticket every day. On Friday, however, he walked on to the pier, and the collector, noticing this, asked him for his ticket, whereupon he produced his brother's monthly ticket.

Lido At Repulse Bay Deserves Fullest Support

The full scheme for the development of the Lido at Repulse Bay, of which only the first portion was opened last Friday evening by Lady Southampton, embraces the provision of tennis courts, a miniature golf course, a swimming pool, and elaborate gardens and floral effects. This part of the original scheme will be carried out later, and will make the complete establishment one of the most lavishly designed of its kind in the world.

The building embodies a number of "family" compartments on the ground floor, with a separate entrance to each, and showers and closets provided, ensuring the maximum of privacy and convenience. There are also a number of small cabins divided into three classes, for men, women and families. In addition to an open-air dance floor on the top of the building, which should be a wonderful place for moonlight dances, there are interspersed in other parts of the building a covered tea lounge, a bar with snack counter, and a soda fountain, specially installed by the Dairy Farm Co., where attractive girls will attend to the wants of customers. All the equipment is completely up-to-date, the most modern cooking apparatus being installed in the kitchens, there also being a full refrigeration service for the convenience of patrons. Altogether the Lido is a wonderful addition to the amenities of Hong Kong and deserves the fullest support.

THE FALL OF THE BASTILLE

FOUNDATION LAID FOR FRENCH REPUBLIC

ABSTRACT IDEA OF EQUALITY
BECOMES A REALITY

FETE NATIONALE TODAY

ALMOST any change of Government nowadays is called a "revolution." It is one of those words whose continual use and misuse has robbed them of most of their meaning. Like the "dramatic," "bomb-shell" and "holocaust," so beloved of the journalist. But the French Revolution of 1789 was at the time and for many years later considered the most remarkable in the history of the world. Whether it still holds this distinction now is a debatable point; for in very recent years revolutions — for want of a better word — have followed close upon one another's heels in Italy, Russia, Germany, and Spain, among other places; indeed, it is difficult to point to a single country which has been entirely untouched by some revolutionary process in the years following the War. In England the first advent of a Labour Government was rightly spoken of as a political "revolution" to come near our own day, the whole of the New Deal in America and the astonishing powers given to President Roosevelt by the country were "revolutionary" in at least one sense of the word.

But we are concerned with what is known to history as the French Revolution. One writer has gone so far as to say that millions of years hence, of all the political topics that fill our histories, the Trojan War and the French Revolution will be the only events that will be worth considering. This is a rash dictum which already seems to be discounted; though it is a fault of people in all times to consider their contemporary history as being of particular importance, and to read into it perhaps more significance than it is worth.

The Starting Point

The French Revolution may be said to have started with the meeting of the States General on May 5, 1789, and it may be held to have closed either at the end of the end of the Directory in 1795 or at the end of Napoleon's consulate in 1804. It was relatively far more important than the two revolutions which preceded it. The English Revolution was a mere incident, at the close of which the current of British history resumed its wonted course. The American Revolution, relatively, was a mere assumption of local government. The French Revolution was definitely something more. A powerful nobility, long surrounded by privileged power and wealth, was overturned suddenly; and not only overturned but practically annihilated. The common people, long oppressed and ignored, assumed the reins of government.

The population of France at the time consisted of about 25,000,000 people, which we may divide for purpose of argument into the privileged classes and the others. There was a wide disparity in their numbers and influence. The privileged classes, consisting of the nobles and clergy, numbered about a quarter of a million. They owned half the soil of France; they owned the castles, chateaux, churches, and buildings of note. Despite their vast wealth they squeezed out of the peasants by far the larger share of all they produced, and accepted it purely gratuitously; the peasant was obliged to work for his superiors without pay. The peasant, moreover, could not pass over a road with a sack of grain without paying toll. All the offices of the Government and its revenues were held by the privileged orders, who themselves were practically exempt from taxation. The higher places in the church were filled, almost without exception, by the younger sons of the nobility, though about 40,000 humble priests lived and worked among the villages. The princes of the church used the vast incomes from church property to maintain a social standing among their relatives, while they left their proper work to hired assistants.

Incredible Conditions

The condition of the common people—the people of the earth—in France just before the revolution was almost incredible. Local famines were frequent, because their meagre crops were destroyed by rabbits, pheasants and deer which they were forbidden on pain of death either to molest or kill. In the rural districts it was relatively common for peasants to live on bread made from ground acorns, bark and bran. The peasants died off by thousands, while the working people in the cities huddled together and starved in wretched cellars and attics—sullen masses of rags and misery," as one writer has called were set up for no other purpose but to make a show of outward magnificence: the great nobility and clergy, the principal property owners, were exempt from taxation, and the financial affairs of the nation went from bad to worse because the misery and thriftlessness of the common people made it impossible to extort more money from them after a time. The Government deficit grew from 50,000,000 francs a year to 125,000,000 a year.

This extremity led Louis XVI to summon a meeting of the Notables, an ancient legislative body representing the nobility. To them he made a request that they should sanction the taxation of the privileged classes.

The Notables refused and the King sent them home. He then summoned the historic meeting of the States General, the general Parliament which had not met since 1616, nearly two centuries before. It represented all estates, the nobility, the clergy and the common people. In the meantime the writing of such men as Diderot, Voltaire, Rousseau, and Sieyès, and the influence of the American Revolution, had aroused the thinking people of France to the notion that something desperate must be done.

The beginning of the French Revolution may be traced to the victory of an idea. When the States General met, the King and the aristocracy desired that the members should sit in three houses or bodies — the nobility, the clergy, and the third estate. The common people, however, had determined leaders; and they saw that it would be in vain for their chamber to pass a useful measure because it would be voted down by the other houses. They insisted, therefore, that the entire States General should sit as one assembly, and as they were in the majority and had leaders who knew what they were about, they carried their point. Following many of the clergy, some of the nobility fell into line and a new Parliament called the National Assembly came into being. This was the beginning of the French Revolution.

There was, as there is in every such case, a moderate faction who wished to carry through reforms by constitutional and legitimate means, providing for regular sessions of the States General and for equal taxation. But the Revolution, once started, got beyond their control and wretched bands of peasants, armed with flails and clubs, encouraged at the prospect of relief and filled with hatred engendered by decades of cheating, starving, beating and maiming, were transformed into voracious fiends.

Ugly Picture in History

The taking of the Bastille, the famous State prison, by the mob started a delirious period of excesses, forming an ugly picture in history, in much the same way as mass revolutions always develop. Bands of peasants rose in revolt, and ran in delirious joy from estate to estate. The chateaux of their former oppressors were pillaged, set on fire and plundered everywhere. The poor of Paris rose in revolt. Men of them. Some 23,000,000 wretched, poverty-stricken, hopeless social drudges, with little to wear and less to eat, supported less than a million people in luxury.

The bourgeoisie formed the third class. They stood between the two extremes of hopeless outcasts and gilded aristocrats, and consisted for the most part of well-to-do shop-keepers, lawyers, doctors, bankers and men of letters. It was from this class that the leaders of the Revolution for the most part sprang, although a remnant of the nobility, to their credit, supported them in their fight, the best known of these probably being Lafayette.

Govt. Deficit Mounts Up

The record of two centuries of French government is not pretty. It had been despotic, extravagant and utterly oblivious of the sufferings of the common people. Expensive wars were indulged in; magnificent palaces like Versailles

July 14—the anniversary that has become the national day of the French Republic; the anniversary of the taking of the Bastille, that grim prison that stood for all that was bad in the old regime and whose destruction marked the dawn of a brighter and happier day for France.

Yesterday, to-day being for obvious reasons an inconvenient day for the celebration, the Consul-General for France, Monsieur R. Soulange-Teissier, held a reception in honour of the occasion at his residence, No. 13, Peak Road. It was a brilliant gathering, attended by all the leading members of the French community of the Colony, representatives of Their Excellencies the Officer Administering the Government and the General Officer Commanding, the Commadore, accompanied by Mrs. Sedgwick and attended by his Secretary, Paym. Lt. Comdr. Sweny, and Mrs. Sweny, many of the foreign Consuls and leading British representatives of the Colony.

Refreshments were served and the healths of His Majesty the King and of M. Albert Lebrun, the French President, were drunk in champagne—le bon vin de France.

Consul-General's Speech

M. Soulange-Teissier said:—"It is a special pleasure for me to say these few words in discharging my duties as a host, and it is very sincerely that I thank you all for joining in the celebration of the 'Fete Nationale Française'."

"It is an 'old custom' in this Consulate, dating as far back as 1862. 'From my archives it seems that in those days the Consular orations were much more stiff and 'boiled-shirt' affairs than in later years. Judging from recent precedents I may venture to say that as regards length they have followed the fashion of the bathing suit. Some will regret it, some will approve it, as for anything else in this world."

"I noticed also that in recent years a very favourite subject for these orations has been 'Peace'. I cannot remember how many I have heard, and well laboured speeches too, on that topic. This has prompted in my mind the naughty thought that 'Peace', being ordinarily represented as a lady, must have had a rather doubtful reputation to be talked about so much."

Avoiding 'Peace' Gossip

"The fine art of diplomacy is said to be to steer a middle course. Whatever may be the truth of it, I will take a plunge in shortening this speech and in avoiding 'peace' gossip."

"This policy leaves me free to attend entirely to the subject which is nearest to my heart, that is to say, the subject of the relations of the French Colony in Hong Kong with their British friends."

M. Pierre Laval, the French Premier.

"They have always been friendly; but in the past, they were handicapped to a certain extent by the difficulties of both languages. In recent years there has been an extensive change and improvement in that direction and to-day I have no difficulty in picking up on both sides of this assembly, specially among the flowers of the younger set, the proofs of this evolution. This fact and its quality have been shown to their best during the celebrations of the King's Silver Jubilee, in which both sides of this gathering joined and participated most heartily."

"Ladies and Gentlemen, let us take the renewed opportunity which is offered to us to-day and join me respectfully and sincerely in saying:

To The King."

Sir Atholl MacGregor Replies
Sir Atholl MacGregor in reply said:—"In the regrettable absence of Major-General Dorrett it falls to my lot to reply to the toast which you have so ably and felicitously proposed, and in due course it will be my turn to propose an equally worthy and happy toast which is so appropriate on this day. But before I do so I would like to say one or two words."

"I would like to take this opportunity of saying them on behalf of those whom you have so aptly called to-day your British friends. Few, if any of us, I imagine, have had the opportunity of attending all these annual celebrations since 1862. Although I may look like it, I am certainly not one of those, I assure you. I can't help feeling the deep affection our two races must have had for each other in those distant days before there were electric roof fans to alleviate the heat, when people came here in boiled shirts. This justifies the deep affection and esteem which our race always have had for yours."

"I say for myself that had I been here in those days my boiled shirt would have been a mere figment of fantasy. It would have been quite unstiffened before I had been here a few minutes."

International Amity

"I am going to follow you in taking for my theme the friendship of our two races. It must be, indeed it is, a very deep and lasting friendship, and whatever it has been in the past, it must be lasting when we think of the way we have stood together during the worst years of our history."

"It is the earnest hope of all your British friends here to-day,

Message*INTELLECTUAL ENTENTE NECESSARY

[To The Editor, "Sunday Herald"]
SIR,—I am desirous of taking the opportunity of this special publication of yours to tell you my appreciation of our relations. Although—from necessity apparently—your headlines may sometimes anticipate actual events arising in the world, I have found that your editorials are always considerate, well balanced, "well and truly laid."

I know the difficulties which surround the publication of a newspaper in a Colony like Hong Kong. In the mass of information you receive, and among the Protean forms which are taken nowadays by propaganda, the selection of accurate facts, the judgment and opinion to be passed on them, require an immense amount of knowledge, culture, foresight and most of all, commonsense.

In my particular line of action, I have always noticed that if sometimes special minor facts about France or French actions may have been not very clearly or insufficiently placed within their surroundings for an intimate and exact understanding of their purpose or scope, the main issues of the Franco-British intellectual collaboration and the aims and purposes of the people of the two nations have always been fully understood, appreciated and displayed in your paper.

I consider this intellectual understanding, coupled with the identity of the aspirations of the people, to be of the utmost importance. Without intellectual understanding there can be no collaboration in action.

From daily events and in the present development of civilisation it is easy to see that, on a superior plane, no single purpose can achieve its aim. It has to be supported, under a modified form or not, by external intellectual understanding. Such have been precisely the characteristics of the Franco-British relations for the past 30 years.

For the undisputable benefit of our two nations it has been our common aim and purpose to maintain and develop it. On the occasion of the French "Fete Nationale" I desire to thank you for this support.

R. SOULANGE-TEISSIER.

and I think I may include with them all those of every nation here who join in your hospitality, that our relations may be further cemented.

"I thank you for the warm terms in which you have asked those present to drink the health of our King and I now ask them to drink the toast of the President of the French Republic."

Among Those Present

Those present included Captain W. J. R. Cragg, representing His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, Sir Thomas Southern, His Honour the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, and Lady MacGregor, Captain Cloughviolence obtained control of the Assembly, and the King and Queen were hurried to the scaffold, in the company of hordes of their sycophantic followers. A thousand nobles were put to death with scant formality, and thousands of others were cut down in cold blood or driven from France forever.

A dictatorship was appointed, borne into office on the watchwords of "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity." The army was charged with the defence of the young Republic and the liberation of the Italian cities from Austrian domination. As the need for an efficient leader became evident, Napoleon was appointed Consul. In 1804 he had himself proclaimed Emperor. After Waterloo came the Bourbons; after them came Napoleon III.

Great Gains Made

For a time it seemed as though France had lost politically all that the Revolution had gained, but in reality great gains had been made. The nobility had been suppressed effectually. More just ideas of public taxation had taken root. With the lifting of the burdens and the security of property the common people became more prosperous. At the close of the Franco-Prussian War the French Republic was proclaimed, and Napoleon was exiled. In a real sense the French Revolution may be said to have come to a close in 1871.

The main accomplishment of the Revolution was the fact that the abstract idea of equality had gained something more than existence as an ideal. This was possibly one of the most striking individual changes emerging from the Revolution as a whole. In 25 years from 1789 a new generation had grown up to which the exemptions and monopolies of the old nobility were merely hearsay. And they could not be restored. The Church also and the powerful merchant guilds had lost their special rights; all Frenchmen were equal before the law. Nowhere was this more clearly seen than in the army, where Massena, General of the Republic and Marshal of the Empire, had been a private in the ranks. Another meteoric rise to fame was that of Murat, the incomparable leader of cavalry, Marshal of France and King of Naples, who had been a waiter in an inn. The present Royal House of Sweden is descended from the Gascon Bernadotte.

Foundations Laid

Small peasant holdings became common, since there was freedom of agrarian contact for all classes, and the vast estates of the nobility and Church had been appropriated by the State and sold, so that the titles had passed through many hands since 1793, and it was obviously impracticable to restore the soil to its original owners even if that had been desirable or generally desired.

In short, the Revolution, though accomplished with vast sacrifices of bloodshed and violence, laid the foundations for the France of today. Every stability of democracy, as an idea as well as an accomplished fact, is founded upon the rock of sacrifice. France to-day is one of the greatest nations of the world, with a magnificent record of accomplishment in the political as well as the social arts.

When Danton called the vacillating Assembly to action with the stirring words: "We must dare, and dare again, and ever dare—and France is saved!" after that fateful August 10, he called forth a patriotic spirit such as had never before been seen in the world; and it is that spirit, carefully fostered by generations of Frenchmen who have given their all for their country, which is responsible for the strength, the stability and the prestige of France to-day. Vive la France!

The South China Athletic Association Football team who were to have left to-morrow on a tour of Java, via the Straits, but who are now leaving next Thursday, were entertained at a tea party yesterday at the Club Pavilion at Caroline Hill.

Ngan Shing Kwan, Chairman of the Association, presided, and among others present were Mr. Wong Ka Tsun, General Secretary and Messrs. Mok Hing, Lam Chung Ho, Lee Wai-tong, and Ho Yeung Kwong.

In a brief speech Mr. Ngan Shing Kwan reminded the players that this was the fifth occasion that South China had sent a team to tour Java and the Straits and he urged them to do their utmost to maintain the good reputation established by the previous teams both on and off the football field. He concluded by wishing the team every success.

The date of the departure of the Lyce Moon has been postponed until next Thursday.

MISS YEUNG TO GO TO AMOY

Will Be Accompanied By Sister

Miss Yeung Sau-king and her sister Miss Yeung Sau-chen have accepted, through the Hong Kong Chinese Amateur Federation, the invitation of the King Keung Athletic Association of Amoy to be present at the opening of their newly-built swimming pool and to give an exhibition there.

It is expected that the swimming bath will be ready early in August.

SEPOY'S GOAT STABBED

Moran Chan, Sepoy No. 2020 of the First Mountain Battery stationed at Murray Barracks, reports that at about 4 p.m. on Thursday some unknown person stabbed his goat in the head.

FATAL ACCIDENT

A fatal accident occurred on board the s.s. Rushin Maru shortly after 6.30 p.m. yesterday, when a Chinese male, King Yuen-sam, accidentally fell down No. 4 hold, sustaining serious injuries to which he later succumbed. The body has been removed to the Kowloon Mortuary.

DIPLOMATIC RELATIONSHIPS ARE RESUMED

Belgium And Soviet To Exchange Ambassadors

SATISFACTION IN MOSCOW

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Brussels, Yesterday.

Correspondence effecting the resumption of diplomatic relations between Soviet Russia and Belgium has been conducted between the Belgian and Russian Ambassadors at Paris, states an official communique issued here last night.

It is added that the two Ambassadors will remain in touch with each other and for the time being do what is possible to promote the economic relationship between the two countries.

A message from Moscow states that the resumption of diplomatic relations between Belgium and Soviet Russia has been established by an exchange of letters between the Belgian Ambassador at Paris, Baron d'Hestroy, and the Soviet Ambassador, M. Potemkin.

ECONOMIC STIMULUS

The Belgian Ambassador informed M. Potemkin that as a result of the exchange of views which has taken place during the last few weeks, the Belgian Government is prepared to resume diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia and exchange Ambassadors, hoping that the restoration of friendly circumstances will have a stimulating effect on economic relationships.

In answer, M. Potemkin acknowledged the receipt of Baron d'Hestroy's letter and thanked the Belgian Government on behalf of the Soviet Government, which learned with satisfaction of the decision reached. — Trans-Ocean Service.

NORTHERN FLOODS

Many thousands of refugees are crowding on the top of the dyke. — Reuter.

IRONICAL SUNSHINE

Another Hankow message states that several hundred thousand people are homeless in Hupeh, mostly in the vicinity of Ichang, which has hitherto been the most severely affected of the Yangtze ports.

Ironically the sun is shining throughout the Yangtze Valley, but it is feared that the change in the weather after the torrential rains is too late to save Hankow, where the water already envelops to a depth of 10 feet the tanks of the Standard Oil Co., the Texas Oil Co., and the Asiatic Petroleum Co. — Reuter.

NATIVE DISTRICT INUNDED

An earlier Hankow message stated that the breach in the concrete wall of the Japanese Concession had been closed by a repair gang after two hours' strenuous effort. The situation was ominous, as the river was rising every hour. — Reuter.

A later message stated that a break in the dyke had resulted in the flooding of the native district adjoining the concessions. One wall of the British Cigarette Co.'s factory had collapsed. The Changkung dyke, the main bulwark of Hankow, was still firm, but the water was nearing the top and collapse within 24 hours was predicted. — Reuter.

AUSTRIA GRATIFIED BY SUPPORT

COMMON ACTION AGAINST HAPSBURG RESTORATION

PRINCE PAUL IN RUMANIA

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Vienna, Yesterday.

The British Foreign Secretary's speech in the House of Commons on Thursday is hailed as welcome support for Austria by the press here, which gives great prominence to the passage affirming the necessity for the Austrian independence being preserved.

This statement is characterised by the Wiener Zeitung as a surprise holding out great promise. Not only is it an important justification of British policy, continues the paper, but a refreshing plea for Austria's struggle for independence and liberty as well as an effective supplement to the declaration made by the great Powers concerning the significance of Austria in the European scheme.

Sir Samuel Hoare's allusion to the dangers which would arise for European peace if Austria were attacked is termed an important success for Austria by the Neues Wiener Tagblatt, which stresses the fact that the Foreign Secretary thought it necessary publicly to recognise Austria's strategic economic key position in Europe. — Trans-Ocean Service.

GERMANY LEADS IN DAVIS CUP

Heroic Display By Menzel

SEVERAL DOUBTFUL DECISIONS

Prague, Yesterday.

Von Cramm and Lund (Germany), showing superior combination, beat Menzel and Malacek (Czechoslovakia) by 6-3, 9-7, 6-4 to give Germany a 2-1 lead in the European Zone Final of the Davis Cup contest here to-day.

In the first game Menzel's service went to five deuces against clever volleys by Lund. The Germans led by 4 games to 1, after which the Czechs pulled up and brought the score to 3-5, chiefly through Menzel's hard work, Malacek being outclassed.

Von Cramm's net play was brilliant in the second set, in which the Czechs were desperate. Malacek improved with splendid placements, and as a result several games went to deuce. The games went with service to 7-all, at which point the Germans broke through. The crowd boomed the umpire's doubtful decisions against the Czechs.

Lund did some fine placing on both wings and Cramm played faultless tennis to establish a lead of 8-1 in the third set, the third and fourth games going to seven deuces. Menzel put up a heroic show, but was handicapped by the failure of Malacek. — Reuter.

Strauss Resigns His Official Posts

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Berlin, Yesterday.

The famous composer Richard Strauss has requested the Minister of Propaganda, Dr. Goebbels, to accept his resignation from the offices of President of the Reich Chamber of Music and President of the professional organisation of German composers, owing to his advanced age and failing health.

Dr. Goebbels granted the request and expressed in a letter to Dr. Strauss his gratitude for the work accomplished by the eminent musician.

The General Musikdirektor, Professor Peter Rank, has been appointed by Dr. Goebbels President of the Reich Chamber of Music, while the composer Dr. Paul Graener succeeds Dr. Strauss as President of the professional organisation of German composers. — Trans-Ocean Service.

ENGLAND ALL OUT

It was an unfortunate incident in more ways than one, as Smith, his partner, was playing in his first Test!

Barber, who joined Smith, opened very confidently with attractive leg shots; he steered his first ball from Langton away to the square-leg bowler and scored a 3 off his second delivery. Thereafter, however, both batsmen were pegged down, and the 50 was signalled only after 55 minutes' play.

CAMERON INJURED

Cameron, the South Africa vice-captain and wicket-keeper, was struck on the right temple when taking a rising ball from Vincent. He had to leave the field, but returned after a few minutes, with the wound plastered.

After a very promising partnership that had added 52 runs, Barber was well taken at forward short leg by Bell off Langton. He had contributed 24 towards the 52 added for the second wicket.

The South Africans met with their third success after 28 runs had been added for the third wicket, when Smith played inside one of Vincent's faster deliveries and was snapped up behind the wicket by Cameron for 86, scored out of 78. He had batted 100 minutes in his first Test innings.

HAMMOND GOES IN LATE

Hammond, who went in a wicket later than usual, was then joined by Mitchell, the Yorkshireman who was brought into the side at the last minute, and the pair played out time until the luncheon interval, which was taken at 95 for 3, Hammond then being 23 and Mitchell 8.

A crowd of 25,000 was present when play was resumed. Both batsmen ignored Bruce Mitchell's efforts to tempt them with high spinners, and scoring was consequently on the slow side. Mitchell, however, straight drove his Prince Paul intends to leave off Bell. He had been at the crease since to-morrow and will proceed for 93 minutes.

However, just as he was getting into his stride for the first time this season, following two boundaries off Bell, he stepped in front of a straight 'un from Vincent. 147/4/68.

Hammond, who had batted for 110 minutes, hit five boundaries in a partnership that yielded 69 runs in 30 minutes.

Hardstaff then joined Mitchell, who was in the 30's, but had his first Test innings terminated after just reaching double figures when Vincent accepted a low return catch. 177-5-10.

RANDOM NOTES ON CHINESE MUSIC

EARLIEST CONNECTION WITH RELIGION

RULES STILL BASED ON SYMBOLIC MEANINGS

(By Phyllis Juby)

THE Chinese claim the distinction of having invented music. Their traditional history tells that in olden times, before the memory of man, this art was brought to perfection by them. We know little of those early and mythical folk, but we know that, as with all ancient people, the music of the Chinese was in close affinity to their religion. It was something essentially magical. The tones mysteriously reminiscent of the phenomena of nature; the rhythmic gripping men and lifting them out of themselves; the pantomimic dances that accompanied the music imbued with a deep cosmic significance—all went to produce the effect of something transcending the soul of man and influencing terrestrial events.

Music From Nature
Music, say the Chinese, is the harmony between heaven and earth; and therefore their musical ideas rest on the natural production represented by unity, which is heaven; and that which man evolves or plurality, which is earth. The five notes which originally constituted their scale were called after five planets; a combination of three, the symbol of heaven, and two, that of earth.

History begins in the story of the Chinese nation with the Emperor Fu Hsi (about 3,000 B.C.). The birth of Fu Hsi was, however, reputedly magical. He was the son of the Flower-loving Nymph, the Daughter of Heaven, long worshipped in China. The legend goes that a glittering rainbow unfolded her one day in an embrace of love, and Fu Hsi was born. Naturally able and wise, Fu Hsi at once evolved a system of music from the primitive state in which it already existed. He was, too, the reputed inventor of the lyre, and the lute that, in his own words, "the people might be charmed with music, and thus be enabled to bear more cheerfully the burdens of life."

When the Emperor Yao died (about 2,300 B.C.), it is recorded that the people mourned for him three years and that musical instruments between the "Four Seas" ceased to play and were stored away. It appears that from remotest ages music was forbidden in time of mourning and an old Chinese proverb runs: "When in mourning one does not talk of music." Probably this greatly checked the progressive flow of music as an art. At the burials of royal personages the court musical instruments were placed inside the grave, as the ritual says, "for the purpose of gratifying the soul of the dead with delectable tones."

Music From Stones

A hanging stone gong was much in favour at this time, though it still exists in the present day temple services. Yao's court musician chants the praises of this music in expressive song:

When I smile my mystical stone,
be it gently or strong,
Then do the fiercest hearts leap
for joy,
And the chiefs do agree among themselves.
When ye make to resound the
stone melodious,
When ye touch the lyre that is called Ch'in,
Then do the ghosts of the ancestors come to hear.

A little later there is talk of mysterious musical gem stones. These stones were said to have been paid in revenue to the State of Yu by the province of Leang, and occasionally in some old book of Chinese there is found some vague and alluring reference to these strange stones that played a melody. About 300 years ago Thomas Moore read of them and somewhere in "Lalla Rookh" he passes on the legend:

Then, the sounds from the Lake,
the low whispering in boats,
As they shoot through the moon-
light; the dipping of oars,
And the wild, airy warbling that everywhere floats,
Through the groves, round the islands, as if all the shores
Like those of Kathay uttered music, and gave
An answer in song to the kiss of each wave.
An old commentator of the Book

"Naturally I wanted to pay him what I could for curing me, but he wouldn't take any money. He just made a bargain with me to go up and show myself to Professor H. And I did later, when I left the place and came back home."

"What did the Professor say? He must have been pleased."

"Not so, as you'd notice it. Quite the other way; he got even madder than about the motor bike. Said I was a swindler and guilty of fraud. He had bought a leg that didn't exist any more, and I was the worst kind of trickster. So he threw me out, and the agreement of purchase of my skeleton, after me."

I congratulated Paulson on the happy ending of the affair, and I said:

"I suppose Lisa was very glad?"

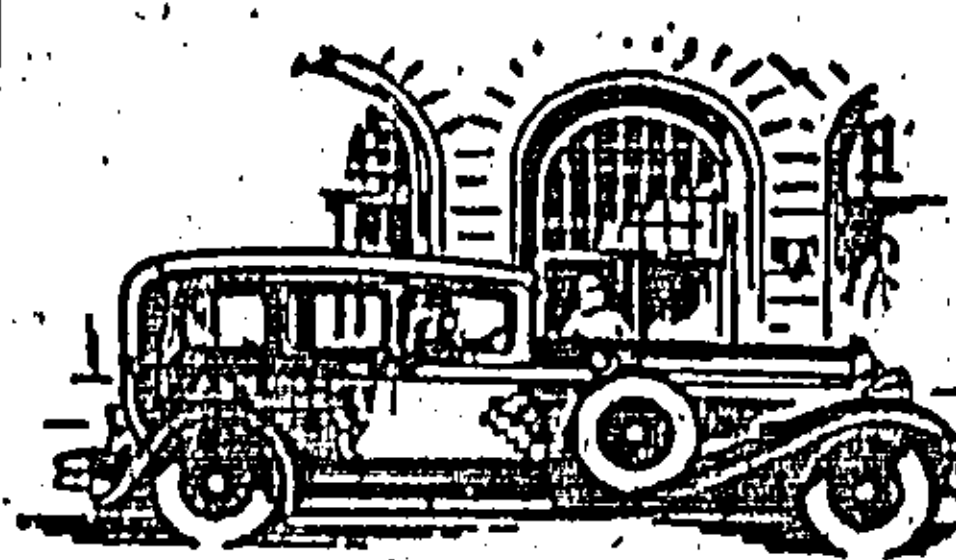

"Lisa? Oh, that's over. She threw me over when she couldn't get me to go back on my agreement with the Professor. Now I'm engaged to another girl; she is so sensible and understanding. If she looks a bit downhearted any time I just tell her the story of my skeleton—the whole affair from beginning to end—and she laughs till she cries. She says it's the funniest story she ever heard, and she doesn't believe that there is a word of truth in it. Women are strange creatures. Why didn't the other one think it was just a yarn?"

of History says: "The ancients observed that a current of water made some of the stones near its bank send forth a sound. They detached some of them and, being charmed with the delightful sound they emitted, constructed musical instruments of them."

In Confucius' Days

The Book of Odes tells us of court music-masters whose duty it was to set to music contemporary folk-songs. And, indeed, in these ancient times, so high a value was placed on the art of music that only those who understood the art were considered fit to perform the duties of rulers. Confucius himself was considerably interested in music—"celestial music."—During the dynasty in which he lived were "the interaction of ceremonies and music established."

MOTORING NOTES

SUPREMACY OF 4-CYLINDER ENGINES

Convincingly Shown At Indianapolis

REPEATED WINS COULD NOT BE MERELY COINCIDENCE

Could it be more coincidence that the first four cars, to finish in the 25th running of the Indianapolis speedway classic were all powered with four-cylinder motors, and that the first four winners of 1934 also were four-cylinder engines?

Perhaps, but one could not convince the automotive minded men of Toledo, home of a manufacturing organization that produces a four-cylinder automobile, that it means anything but striking proof of their engineering philosophy.

Gruelling Test

The disciples of four-cylinder supremacy point to the gruelling test of endurance, construction, fuel consumption and speed required to compete successfully in the Indianapolis classic, and then reiterate to the world in general that the fact of four-cylinder cars finishing first, second, third and fourth in two consecutive years could not possibly be a coincidence.

Ralph J. Archer, sales manager of the Willys-Overland plant, upon his return to Toledo from the 500-mile grind, was so impressed with the performance of four-cylinder cars there, that he dispatched letters to his dealers everywhere to take special note of the Indianapolis results.

IMPROVEMENTS IN 1935 FORD V-8

New "Centre-Poise" Springing

STRIKING RIDING COMFORT

THE most striking feature of the new Ford V-8 for 1935 is body lines which are distinctively modern and a definite departure from any previous Ford design. The new car also embodies a combination of major engineering developments aimed at increased riding comfort—which is called the "centre-poise" ride. Numerous improvements in chassis design to provide increased ease of control are also included.

Two important improvements have been made in the Ford V-8 engine, of which more than 1,300,000 are now on the road. The new car marks the present culmination of developments begun by Ford three years ago at the time of the announcement of the V-8 engine. In the three years intervening Ford has been engaged in the development of a combination of engineering improvements aimed at providing a degree of riding comfort and ease of control comparable with the performance of the engine itself. The new body designs are a further evidence of the progress of Ford engineering.

Flowing Curves

In appearance, the new cars are characterized by a freshness of conception utilising flowing curves to carry out the modern motif, plus a new treatment of interior and exterior appointments which sound an entirely new note in Ford body styling.

The engineering advances in engine and chassis are comparable in importance. Principal among these is the new "ride" effected by the new spring suspension system, proper car weight balance and passenger weight distribution, and location of passengers closer to the "centre" of the car.

The modern design note is carried without break from the new slanting vertical grille with horizontal beading through the sweeping line of the low hood and more sharply slanting windshield, the beautifully moulded body and the flowing quarter panel. Bodies are also materially wider. The fenders of the body colour are deeper and more highly crowned, with sweeping skirts. Wheels are smaller, tyres larger. The result is an impression of mass and stability most pleasing to the eye.

NOVEL AUTOMOBILE CLUB

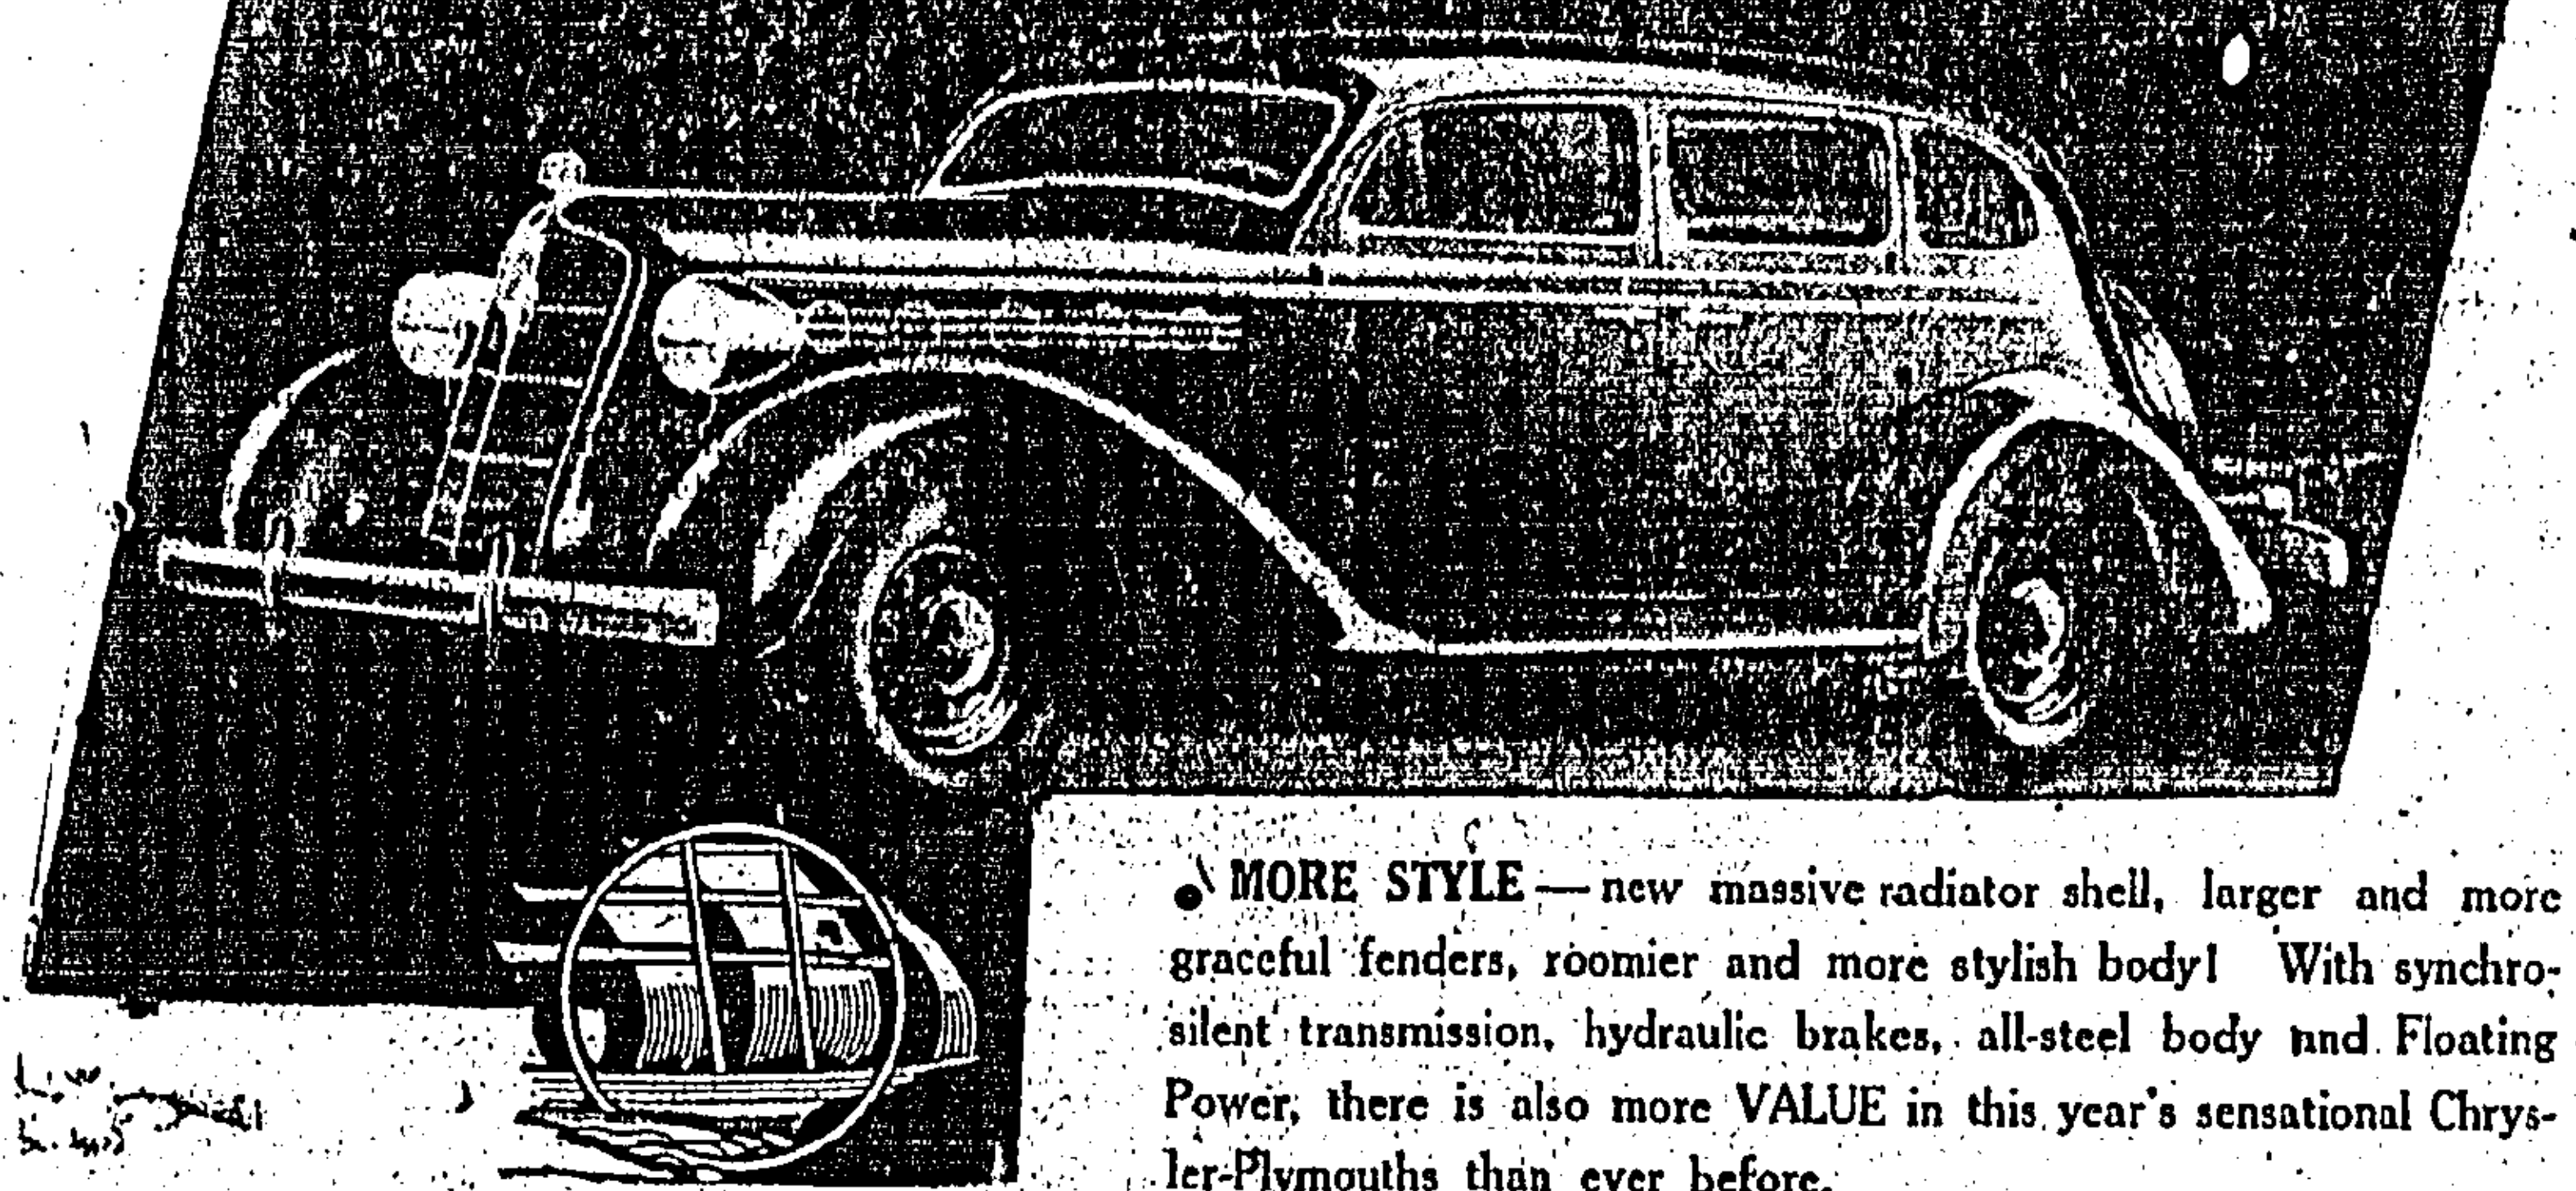

English Members Pay Only For Petrol

England has now an automobile organisation known as the International Automobile Club, Ltd., which provides its members with unusual facilities. Its annual subscription is £250. Members of the club are entitled to the unlimited daily use of any of the following makes of cars:—Rolls-Royce, Bentley, Sunbeam, Daimler, Lagonda, Talbot, Alvis, Invicta, Delage, Alfa Romeo, Packard, Hispano-Suiza, Mercedes, and Isotta-Fraschini. The club has its own service stations in most parts of London.

Members have to pay their own petrol bills, but all other running costs, it is stated, are borne by the club. Having selected the car most suitable for the member's needs, a change to any other make available can only be made by his giving reasonable notice to the club.

This scheme of providing club facilities, which include the use and sole handling of a high-class, well-serviced motor car, is an interesting innovation, and it remains to be seen if the venture will prove to be a financial success.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

Lesson Of Contract Bridge Comedy

By Lieut.-Col.
H.M. Beasley

A most interesting hand occurred in a duplicate match recently. Although a comedy of errors, it illustrates two essential features in the play of the hand, both in attack and defence.

I refer now—

(A)—In Attack: To the manipulation of the hand in a trump suit contract when the declarer holds a four-card trump suit only and finds that there are six trumps held against him by the opponents.

(B)—In Defence: The importance of watching carefully the fall of the cards in order that you may avoid blocking a long suit which your partner has established.

North:—

S—J
H—A 7 4
D—A K Q 4
C—Q 9 7 6 3

West:—

S—9 8 5 3
H—Q 10 9 3
D—9 3
C—K 10 5

South:—

S—Q 10
H—K 8 5
D—J 5 2
C—A J 8 4 2

East:—

S—A K 7 6 4 2
H—J 6 2
D—10 8 7 6
C—

The contract in each case was three Diamonds, played by North. The opening lead by East is the King of Spades.

In one room North made his contract and in the other room failed by two tricks.

North can see that the opponents hold six trumps. Before he decides on a plan of campaign he should bear in mind the fact that there is always the possibility that the trump suit may be unevenly divided between the opponents' hands, and therefore guard against the danger of finding four or five trumps in either East's or West's hand.

To commence by leading out trumps in the hope of finding the trump suit evenly divided in the opponents' hands is a very risky manoeuvre.

In one room when East led the Ace of Spades at the second trick North failed to take any precautionary measure and trumped the second Spade with the 4 of Diamonds in his own hand, thus reducing the number of trumps which he held to three, with a Spade suit firmly established against him.

North then proceeded to lead out the Ace, King, and Queen of trumps and found to his great chagrin that East held the last trump, together with an established Spade suit. The net result was that North failed to make his contract by two tricks.

Owing to bad defensive play by West, North might have lost an extra trick. West failed to watch the fall of the cards. He played the 3 of Spades on the first trick, and should have noted that the Jack and the 10 had both been played.

On the second trick, when East led the Ace of Spades, West played the 5 and was left with the 9 and 8 of Spades, which completely blocked the remainder of East's winning Spade tricks. West should have played the 8 of Spades in the second trick in lieu of the 5.

Had he done this East and West would have made five Spade tricks, a Diamond trick, and a Club trick, and North and South would have been three down in their contract.

With regard to the play of the hand by North at the second trick, when East led the Ace of Spades, North should have refused to trump, having only four trumps, and in lieu should have discarded a heart.

He should then have led two rounds of trumps followed by a lead of a Club. Had he done this East and West could only make two Spade tricks, one Diamond trick, and one Club trick.

GREAT DISCOVERY AT ROME

History Of The City In Colossal Frieze

PROBABLY COMMISSIONED BY CAESAR AUGUSTUS

Rome.

Whilst conducting archaeological researches in the Aemilia Basilica in the Forum of Rome, Professor Bartoli discovered a colossal frieze.

It is considerably over 500 feet long and is larger even than the Parthenon frieze. It contains hundreds of figures in high relief, illustrating the history of Rome from the legendary days of Romulus and Remus to the age of Augustus.

The work apparently was executed by a Greek artist who, it is believed, received his commission from Augustus himself with the object of immortalising the history of Rome.

When the frieze has been restored it will be exhibited in a museum in the new Street of Triumphs.

The Emperor Ts'in (200 B.C.) ordered all books and music to be burned. He was said to be greatly irritated by music, so much so that a court wit introduced the proverb: "Playing the zither to an ass, and talking astrology to the blind." After this, instrumental music was practised by the Chinese to a far greater degree than vocal music. The lute became increasingly popular and the flowery and symbolic language of the Chinese has not only given a special name to each particular position of the hands, but also denotes them by pictures drawn from nature. Thus one is the flowering lotus resting upon the bosom of the still waters; another, a bird upon the wing in chase of the cicada; a third, the industrious bee collecting sweet food from the delicious flowers of the earth.

The Perfect Instrument

The Sh'eng is an instrument of special interest to us since it is the original idea of our present perfect organ. The music of this instrument was intended to restrict evil passions and to soothe the spirit. The chief parts of the instrument were carefully designed after natural laws; the length corresponded to the days of the year; the five strings were the five elements; the rounded body represented the heavens; and the pegs, irrespective of strings, were placed in to stand for the moons.

By the time of the T'ang dynasty the musical art was practically in the modern form it now is. The music of the Emperor Ming Huang was famous and came to be described as universal music. The Mongol rulers of the Yunn dynasty are said to have included the composition of airs among examination tests and introduced such subjects into Court competitions. These airs became in time the chief musical element of the theatre. Music was divided into ritual or sacred music and theatrical music, and this distinction is made to the present day. The theories and rules are still based on infinitely difficult and symbolic meanings which require very elaborate working out.

Sydney.

"In a world gone mad with insensate hatred and blind unreasoning prejudice, Britain stands as the centre of sanity."

This was the opinion expressed by Mr. Levy, who comes from South Africa, at his induction as Chief Rabbi at Sydney.

It was, he added, a privilege to Jew and Gentile alike to live under the British flag, which, almost alone, was flying on the mast of sanity.

CANTON MILITARY PARLEYS OPEN TO-MORROW

President Carlos Mendicta of Cuba shown as he affixed his signature to the new Cuban Constitution which was adopted by the Legislature recently. The signing took place in the salon of Mirrors, in the Presidential palace, and marks the first step toward the planned holding of a plebiscite to determine by election the next President of the island republic. The election is expected in December this year.

IMPROVED DEFENCE FOR THE SOUTH POLITICAL SITUATION REVIEWED KUOMINTANG FIFTH NATIONAL CONGRESS PROBLEMS

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.

As an important military conference is scheduled to be convened here on Monday, July 15, all the ranking Generals are expected to return here by to-morrow at the latest from their respective garrison posts. General Yu Hon-mao, G.O.C. of the First Army, arrived last night from Tayu, Southern Kiangsi, in the company of Brigadier-General Chen Chang.

All divisional commanders have also been requested to return here to attend the meeting. If they are unable to do so owing to pressure of military duties, these senior officers have been requested to submit proposals to reach the conference before Monday.

General Li Yang-ching, G.O.C. of the Third Army, is returning overland from Swatow and will arrive here to-morrow afternoon. Other divisional and brigade commanders are also coming here for the gathering, which is to be attended also by officers of the air force and the Canton flotilla. As usual, the agenda is to be kept strictly confidential.

RESTORATION OF HAPSBURGS A CASUS BELLI EXTREME MEASURE CONTEMPLATED

Yugoslavia & Rumania
To Act Jointly

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Paris, Yesterday.

The restoration of the Hapsburg monarchy in Austria will be considered a casus belli by both Yugoslavia and Rumania: this was agreed between the rulers of the two countries during their deliberations at Sinai, according to Le Matin's special correspondent, who asserts that details of a joint plan of action for that eventuality were evolved by King Carol and Prince Regent Paul yesterday.

It is not a secret that grave anxiety prevailed in Yugoslavia and Rumania because recent events appeared to foreshadow an attempt to restore the former Austro-Hungarian empire, points out the correspondent, adding that Yugoslavia and Rumania have decided to take even the most extreme measures to prevent the realisation of such a project.

Since joint action by the Little Entente is doubtful, in view of the attitude of the Czechoslovakian Government, which prefers a Hapsburg monarchy in Vienna to an enclaves uniting Austria with the Reich, the correspondent believes that Rumania and Yugoslavia may decide to act alone if events should demand it.—Trans-Ocean Service.

Two unlucky Test players. Sutcliffe, left, was unable to play owing to stiffness, and Bob Wyatt, the England skipper, who scored a "duck" yesterday.

AMERICA AND THE SOVIET

Trade Agreement
Signed

Washington, Yesterday.

The United States and the U.S.S.R. have signed a trade agreement which is expected by officials of both Governments to treble the value of the trade between the two countries.

The U.S.S.R. pledges to make purchases in the United States totalling $80,000,000 in the next 12 months.—Reuter.

LITVINOFF ACCEPTS CZECH INVITATION

Visit Likely To Take Place In The Autumn

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Prague, Yesterday.

M. Litvinoff, Russian Foreign Commissary, invited by the Czechoslovakian Government through its Minister at Moscow to pay a visit to Czechoslovakia, has accepted.

The exact date of the event, which will be a return for Dr. Benes' visit to Moscow, has not yet been fixed, but it is considered highly probable that it will take place immediately after the plenary session of the League of Nations in the Autumn.—Trans-Ocean Service.

CHINESE BITTEN BY DOG

Mr. Leung of No. 17, Nanking Street, was treated at the Kowloon Hospital yesterday after having been bitten by a dog belonging to Mr. Chan Nan-tong of No. 33, Hankow Road. The dog was sent to Mataukok for observation.

FOUR PROVINCES MAKE MOVE FOR INDEPENDENCE

Censored Report In Canton Paper

NO CONFIRMATION AVAILABLE

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.

Censorship of newspapers here is becoming more rigid and extensive, notwithstanding the fact that the press censorship has theoretically been abolished. Newspapers are required to send all items to the Censorship Bureau, although subjects touching only on military affairs, public morals and public safety are required to be censored.

A local paper desired to publish an exclusive cable dispatch of a four-province movement in North China, independent of the Nanking Government, but it was taken out by the censor last night.

"This item is not concerned with public morals and safety, or with military affairs," said the editor of the paper. "We received the news from a foreign source, and foreign newspapers in other parts of the world are publishing the same story. I do not see how the Canton regime is affected by such a report."

Asked as to which were the four provinces involved, the "desk man" said that they allegedly include Hopei, Shantung, Shanai and Chahar, which would be friendly to Japan and Manchukuo. Being in far-away Canton, he is, however, unable to confirm the veracity of this report.

HALF-YEARLY ACCOUNTS OF THE "BIG FIVE"

Increase In Banking
Business

LONG-TERM INVESTMENTS
ALSO RISE

London, Yesterday.

The combined half-yearly balance sheets of the Big Five banks confirm the impression that the volume of banking business during the first six months of the year was larger than for the corresponding period of 1934.

Nevertheless, a further increase in deposits to £1,794,000, compared with £1,682,000 at June 30, 1934, proves that the channels for investing funds have not yet appreciably widened, and consequently long-term investments further increased by £64½ millions, and advances to clients rose by nearly £19 millions, which is still only 41.4 per cent. of deposits, while 50 per cent. is regarded as normal.

The increase in bills by 57½ millions is probably mostly accounted for by commercial bills, as the Treasury bill holdings recently showed a tendency to decline.

The question is what will happen to long-term investments when the demand for funds revives. The Times does not anticipate an appreciable selling of gilt-edged securities by the banks, as the larger requirements of money by industry are likely to be met by extensive gold de-hoardings.—Reuter.

BRITISH WARSHIPS ARRIVE

Two British warships arrived in the Colony yesterday afternoon from Wei-wai-wel. They were H.M.S. Capetown from Woosung and H.M.S. Regulus, one of the new submarines which arrived in the Colony from England a short time ago.
